"Understanding Reached, but No Reconciliation," Declares Former Railroad Man

Charles S. Mellen, former president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, declared over the telephone from New York to the Boston American today that, while he and his wife, Mrs. Katherine Livingston Mellen, had come to an understanding, there would be no reconciliation between them.

A report out of Stockbridge, seat of Mr. Mellen's fancy farm, "Council Grove," said that a reconciliation was in prospect. This report was based on the news that the "Council Grove" mansion was being renovated and that the apartments formerly occupied there by Mrs. Mellen were undergoing alterations. The report assumed that these alterations indicated Mrs. Mellen's prospective return to the domestic hearth.

UNDERSTANDING REACHED.

But Mr. Mellen said over the wire to the American:

"Mrs. Mellen and I have come to an understanding. But there is no reconciliation and there will be none. That is all I have to say on the matter."

Clifton H. Warner, counsel for Mrs. Mellen, gave a rather optimistic turn to the situation today. He said over the telephone from Pittsfield:

"Negotiations between my client and Mrs. Mellen are pending and better relationships have already been established. We hope for an early reconciliation. No one can speak with authority on this subject, however.

"I do not believe there is anything in the story that the alterations at the Mellen residence at Stockbridge are being made in anticipation of Mrs. Mellen's homecoming. Things haven't gone that far yet. All I can say is that things look brighter and we hope for a reconciliation soon."

Mr. Mellen filed suit for separation in the Berkshire Probate Court May last. He also asked the right to con-

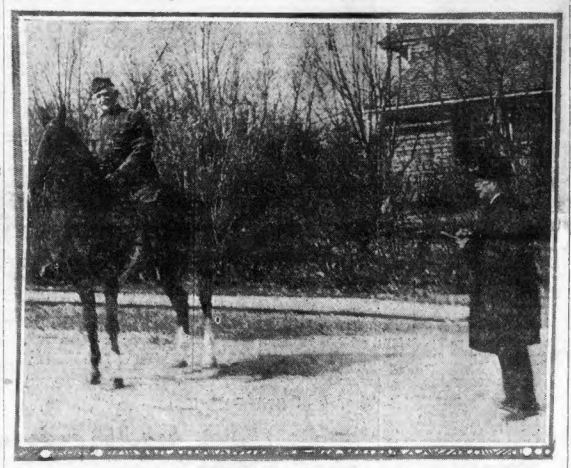
GEN. EDWARDS POSING FOR STATUETTE



Major-General Clarence R. Edwards, commander of the 26th, or New England, "Yankee" Division, posing on his favorite horse "Laddie" for Alexander Pope, a painter and sculptor. Mr. Pope has finished a striking statuette of General Edwards. The picture, copyright by International Film Service, shows General Edwards posing while Mr. Pope is making sketches.

First steps toward making a statuette of General Clarence R. Edwards were taken today when General Edwards went for a horseback ride accompanied by Alexander Pope, the sculptor. Mr. Pope made sketches of the famous soldier in the saddle.

General Edwards, always in his element on a horse, rode his favorite, "Laddie," which has just arrived from Newport News. It has recently been in quarantine there.

The general rode about the estate of Arthur Tisdale Bradlee of Chestnut Hill. Although now commanding the Northeastern Department, General Edwards will be commemorated in the statuette as leader of the famous Yankee Division.

Mr. Pope has in his studio a statuette of General Pershing, made after sketches which he did in France.

Y. D. WELCOME TO COST NEARLY $700,000

It will cost $695,000 to entertain men of the 26th Division at Boston and Camp Devens, according to figures given out by army officials. They include the following items:

Three trips on railroad trains, $35,000; salaries of officers and men, $150,000; entertainment, $400,000; heat, light, water, etc., $80,000. After looking over the figures at Northeastern Headquarters, a plan for defousing the men at the Boston Army Supply base, instead of at Camp Devens was considered. Officers estimated that $75,000 might be saved in this way, so that only one trip to the camp would be necessary. This would be for demobilization.

Major Michael J. Moore held a conference with Sims & Webster on plans for setting up equipment for the "sanitary process" at the supply base. If this is adopted, the men will be prepared there for the parade. General Edwards gave the plan his approval, and a report will be made next week, in time for Colonel Albert S. Williams, chief of staff, to take it to Washington.

American Markets Swamped; Everyone Is Buying Fish

Everyone is buying fish! The Boston American Fish Stores are doing so much business that their employes can hardly handle it. Probably no greater amount of fish was ever sold in any store before as in every one of the American stores during the past twenty-four hours.

Again and again the entire stock of each of the stores was bought out by men and women who crowded the marts to take advantage of their first opportunity to get food at cost. Codfish, haddock, herring, finnan haddie, Boston bluefish, whiting all sold rapidly. The mackerel on sale at five and six cents a pound was snapped up at once.

GERMANY DEMANDS CREDITS ABROAD

Berlin, via Copenhagen and London, March 15.—At a meeting of financiers today with Count von Bernstorff, former German ambassador to the United States, presiding, a demand was made for the application of President Wilson's "fourteen points" to German economic problems and the immediate establishment of credits abroad. Protest was made against the setting up of a separate State in Rhenish Prussia.

PELLETIER RAPS WAR BUDGET

Discrimination Charged in Division of Funds for Comfort of Soldiers

Endorsement by Secretary of War Baker and Secretary of the Navy Daniels of the budget for the distribution of $200,000,000 of United War Work funds among United States troops and those of its allies was attacked today by District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier, supreme advocate of the Knights of Columbus and a leader in the work of the National Catholic War Council.

District Attorney Pelletier said he was embarrassed in discussing the subject freely because an alleged statement by General Pershing was used as the basis for awarding the Y. M. C. A. $118,852,042, and the National Catholic War Council $38,015,875.

"This statement," said Mr. Pelletier, "reads that not more than 10 per cent of the total distributed among our soldiers and those of our allies should

GERMANS YIELD ON SHIPS

Agree to Terms of Allies and Will Receive Food in Exchange

New York, March 15.—With reference to newspaper stories that the League of Nations is not to be included in the peace treaty, Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary of the President, who is here today, gave out the following statement:

"I cabled direct to the President at Paris asking him if there was any truth in these reports, and I am in receipt of a cable from the President stating that the plenary council has positively decided that the League of Nations is to be part of the peace treaty; that there is absolutely no truth in any report to the contrary."

Paris, March 15.—The German armistice commission at Brussels has accepted the allies' terms for feeding Germany and the Germans are expected to begin surrendering their mercantile fleet to the allies today, says a dispatch from the Belgium capital. The allied parliamentairies, headed by Admiral Sir Rosslyn Wemyss of England, have decided to furnish Germany with 370,000 tons of food every month.

The American delegates hold that the League of Nations matter has been entirely settled and that, there-

NEW DANGER OF FISHERMEN'S STRIKE

Despite the vote taken by Boston and Gloucester fishermen to the arbitration of the War Labor Board, a local strike of fishermen is very likely, it is announced.

Some of the wholesale fish dealers refused to consider the question of fixing a minimum price for fish from the vessel to the wholesaler and it is likely that other companies will follow suit.

The fishermen are demanding a minimum price for fish, a bigger share of the profits, a new method of the classification of fish and certain changes in marketing methods.

Henry J. Skeffington of the Department of Labor, who is handling the case for the War Labor Board, expressed a belief today the arbitration would go through, as the producing companies are all pledged to arbitration. There is a good deal of nervousness in the union, however, over the attitude of the wholesalers.

Lodge--Lowell Debate Will Take 3 Hours

Details concerning the Lodge-Lowell debate on Wednesday night, in Symphony Hall, on the League of Nations, have been practically decided. Governor Calvin Coolidge, who is to preside, was asked as to what the questions of the debate would be.

$50,000 LOSS IN FALL RIVER MILL FIRE

Fall River, March 15.—Fire, starting in a chute on the fourth floor of Pocasset Mill No. 2 here today, damaged the fourth and fifth floors of the mill and caused a loss estimated at more than $50,000.

As a result 200 mill operatives, many of them women and girls, will be idle for nearly a week.

Ladderman Timothy Sullivan of Ladder 2 was slightly injured in a fall on one of the floors while engaged in fighting the fire.

Most of the damage was by water, which covered the mill machinery, belting, looms, carders and speeders effectively putting them out of commission.

HOP LEE FREED BY POOR DEBTOR'S OATH

Hop Lee, a Chinese laundryman, whose troubles have kept court and police officials busy, was released from jail on taking the poor debtor's oath. He had served eighty-seven days of a 150-day sentence, in lieu of paying a $75 fine. In jail he refused to work or talk and used strong United States language when addressed. He was arrested following an altercation with his landlord, who refused to make certain repairs. Hop Lee in retaliation tore out some of the plumbing and when the landlord went to look at the damage he was deluged with a pail of water. Fined $75 he went to jail rather than pay.

Thirty-five survivors were landed at Hartlepool by the British steamer Taycraig. The Yselhaven, a vessel of 3,558 tons, was formerly of Dutch nationality, but was requisitioned by the United States Shipping Board for war purposes.

When she was sunk the vessel was enroute from Baltimore to Copenhagen.

Philip Cabot and the Gas Situation in the State

The legislative Committee on Public Lighting heard some remarkable and enlightening testimony Wednesday from Mr. Philip Cabot, who, though a director and large shareholder in a number of gas and electric companies and an opponent of public ownership, spoke with refreshing frankness of the faults and shortcomings of one of the privately owned public utilities of Massachusetts. He told the committee some important facts about gas, and in answer to questions admitted others that every consumer of gas ought to know and remember.

The people of Massachusetts, Mr. Cabot asserted, are paying a good deal too much for gas, and are likely to be obliged to pay still more—not, he alleges, because the companies are making too much money, but merely because they are using archaic methods of manufacture. By introducing the improved processes which have been successfully used for years in the Middle West, the by-products of gas-making—coke, tar, ammonia, benzol and others—can be made to more than pay both for the coal and for the costs and reasonable profits of manufacture, so that THE GAS CAN ACTUALLY BE PLACED IN THE HOLDER AT A COST OF NOTHING AT ALL, LEAVING NOTHING TO BE RIGHTFULLY CHARGED TO THE CONSUMER BUT THE COSTS OF DISTRIBUTION.

This cannot be done on a small scale, however. To bring it about, the sixty or more gas-producing companies or plants in the State must be consolidated into ten or a dozen, of which a single one, supplying Greater Boston, would manufacture one-half of the present total output of twenty billions of cubic feet.

These great central gas factories, supplying gas to the holders of the several cities and towns, should be left, Mr. Cabot argues, under private ownership regulated by the Gas and Electric Commission, but the municipal distributing plants, having but a very simple function to perform, might better be publicly owned. The gas companies, he states, are well aware of the vast savings which might be effected by this concentration of manufacturing facilities, but have been deterred from undertaking it by the public prejudice against consolidations of public utility corporations.

The reason Mr. Cabot expects the price of gas to continue to rise under the present system of small-scale production is that the $18,000,000 received by the companies in 1917 was only enough, after providing for production and distribution costs and a proper reservation for depreciation and obsolescence, to pay dividends of 3 per cent. on the invested capital, which he estimated at seventy-eight to eighty millions.

When asked by the committee to reconcile this showing with THE ACTUAL PAYMENT BY THE COMPANIES OF DIVIDENDS RANGING FROM SEVEN TO FIFTEEN PER CENT. he admitted that a large part of the "invested capital" consisted of surplus earnings of previous years which had been used in extending and improving the plants. He admitted also that THE GAS SHAREHOLDERS ARE MAKING LARGE INDIRECT PROFITS FROM SUBSIDIARY COMPANIES without any additional investments of capital by themselves, and he roundly denounced the policy of allowing the gas sold by "regulated" companies to be manufactured by a company not under public regulation or control.

On the whole, Mr. Cabot's indictment of the existing gas situation was a severe one, but he might easily have made it much more severe. He might have said that of the alleged eighty millions of "invested capital" only some forty-six millions is in capital stock, of which the greater part is probably water. HE MIGHT HAVE ADDED THAT OF THE EIGHTEEN MILLIONS PAID FOR GAS IN 1917 FULLY TEN MILLIONS WERE A TRIBUTE TO MONOPOLY, PAID BY THE PEOPLE OF MASSACHUSETTS AS A DESERVED PENALTY FOR THE FOLLY OF INTRUSTING A GREAT PUBLIC UTILITY TO EXPLOITATION BY PRIVATE PROFITEERS.

What Is the Cheapest Labor in the World?

Copyright, 1919, Star Company

What is the cheapest labor in the world? Not the tribesman's who carries a pack in Africa, or the coolie's who shoves a sampan on the Chinese rivers. No; but the wife's and mother's in the home.

No man who earns $20 a week and gives his wife $15 of it but thinks he is a model husband, supporting her and the family. And then descends upon her the municipal government, which insists that she get her children to school clean and, if possible, neat; the welfare workers, who tell her how she must keep her premises sanitary and her children's food nourishing and varied; the landlord, the shopkeepers and her old man himself, who thinks he has a right to a little bit of comfort and relaxation at home.

She is no fool. She may not be formally educated, but she is no fool. Inefficiency goes under in the struggle she has to go through. She knows all about the eight-hour day; she works two of them in every twenty-four hours. She knows all about the theory of recreation from change of type of work; she has half a dozen types of work, all steady jobs. She knows all about fatigue-points, too, from constant, practical experience.

Why does she so seldom strike? Partly because of the human tendency to stay in a rut; habit, what William James called the "great flywheel of society." Partly from pride; most of us would rather go to smash than be pitied by our neighbors. Partly from the persistence of that traitor to self-interest, the maternal instinct; she goes on year after year, racking her body with hard labor and her brain with worry, every so often facing suffering and even death to give another life to the world, recognizing the grimness of her lot, but accepting it often with hardly even a complaint.

Surely she ought to have a paragraph to herself in the constitution of the new league of nations. For if the rights of any sort of labor, under any sort of conditions, deserve to be recognised, surely hers do.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Favors Federal Control

Editor Boston American:

Your editorial regarding the water power question in the State of Maine is timely, but does not go far enough to strike at the root of the matter. That one State can withhold from another its natural resources when by such release no injury is done, is not sound law and seems a violation of both Federal and interstate rights.

It is high time that all water power in the United States should be put under the control of the Federal government, and as such developed. There should be created at Washington a department known as the "Department of Water Power," embracing the question as a whole, including financing and constructing. Bonds for each development should be issued to cover construction and one year's operation. A twenty-year bond at 5 per cent. would easily sell at 110 at no cost of advertising. The charge for service should be based upon construction and operating cost plus 10 per cent., half of which to pay interest on bonds and the other half to retire them at the end of twenty years.

Operated on the above basis the average cost to the users of this service would not exceed and in fact be less than one cent per kilowatt hour. Left to private enterprise, a development costing five million dollars would be capitalized for fifteen millions. Seven of it sold to innocent investors and the control left in the hands of the promoters as "velvet." He who buys their service must continue to pay fixed charges and interest upon 66 per cent. "water" or from two to three times what the service would cost under Federal operation. This is not only the story on water power, but it applies to 95 per cent. of our large industrial organizations. It is the fundamental cause of most of our economic and industrial troubles. If we cannot remedy what has been done we can at least prevent further exploitation.

HOW FAST A BODY FALLS THROUGH SPACE

By Garrett P. Serviss

"Will you please let us know which is heavier, a body of lead or a body of silver, when they are both of the same dimensions? — Readers."

THE lead is heavier in the ratio (roughly) of 11 to 10. A cubic foot of silver weighs about 655 pounds and a cubic foot of lead about 710 pounds.

A cubic foot of gold weighs about 1,201 pounds, while the same amount of aluminum weighs only a trifle over 160 pounds. There are two well-known metals which are heavier than gold, viz., platinum, which weighs 1,347 pounds per cubic foot, and iridium, whose weight per cubic foot is 1,398 pounds.

The weight of pure iron varies considerably according to its state. If it is cast iron the weight is 450 pounds per cubic foot, and if wrought iron 480 pounds. Mercury weighs 885 pounds per cubic foot, and differs from all other metals by being liquid at ordinary temperatures. The lightest metal is magnesium, weighing only 109 pounds per cubic foot, which is nearly the same as the weight of ordinary brick.

I have added these figures about other metals than lead and silver because the property of density is a very instructive thing to think about. For instance, if one metal is denser than another a cubic foot or a cubic inch of it weighs more than a cubic foot or a cubic inch of the other, and consequently one might suppose that in the heavier and denser of the two substances the molecules would be held more rigidly together than in the lighter one. But this does not follow.

The Determining Factor

It is evident, then, that the relative weight or density of different substances does not depend upon their solidity, but upon the intrinsic heaviness of their ultimate particles or molecules and the number of these included in a given space.

A rolling wave of mercury would strike with double the momentum of the same quantity of solid iron moving with the same velocity, and with fourteen times that of a wave of water. It would knock a man down like a shot. Although the molecules of mercury are specifically heavier than those of iron, yet their grip upon one another is so far loosened by any degree of heat exceeding 39 degrees below zero that they slide over one another without friction, and press in every direction like the molecules of water. But reduce the temperature far enough and the liquid mercury becomes a solid.

If you can squeeze a substance into a smaller space you increase its density. It might be thought that while solids must evidently be but slightly compressible, liquids would be easily compressed. The notion seems widely to prevail that water must suffer much compression at great depths in the sea, and that is the source of the popular fallacy about sunken ships floating at certain depths below the surface.

Resistance of Liquids

But the fact is that liquids are almost as resistant to compression as solids, and more so than some solid. It is practically almost impossible to increase the density of water by squeezing it in a confined space.

At the depth of a mile the pressure of the water upon itself would increase its density so slightly that only about eight ounces would be added to the weight of a cubic foot of it, the normal weight of the latter being 62 or 63 pounds. This shows the reason why a body like a ship which has once sunk below the surface will keep on sinking until it reaches the bottom. But if water were highly compressible, sunken ships would hang and swing with pendulous motion between the spray and the ooze.

Judge Landis' Web.
Two Railroad Items.
Jack Johnson's Confession.
Prize Ring and Disease.

—By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1919.)

Judge Landis in Chicago gathers in the web of justice a collection of criminals that rob ignorant men and women of their Liberty Bonds, giving them worthless stock in exchange.

It is a pleasure to read of Judge Landis verbally skinning alive these criminals.

Having got them in the web of justice, Judge Landis will keep these criminals there if they be guilty. They will not escape.

In another case Judge Landis, to whom all criminals look alike, aroused the country by imposing a fine of many millions on a corporation that was robbing the little people on a vast scale. That corporation escaped Judge Landis' web.

Many centuries have passed since Anacharsis, the Greek, was first to remark that men make their laws as spiders build their webs—strong enough to hold the little flies, not strong enough to hold the big ones.

Two items in American railroading:

The "Twentieth Century," the fastest train between New York and Chicago, ran what is called a "double header" yesterday. They could not get one train long enough to carry the crowd. All space is occupied for many days to come. That means active business. Americans begin to travel, and on the fastest train, as soon as they feel prosperous.

Railroad item number two: On the Big Four line, at Carey, O., a gentleman unidentified at this writing, shot himself. He left a memorandum to the effect that the Supreme Being had sent him to help President Wilson settle the peace league. He added a postscript to the effect that he was tired of living. This particular man, probably, was crazy, but others perfectly sane can sympathize with him.

Mr. Johnson, colored man, was defeated in a prize fight some years ago in Cuba by a white person named Willard. Johnson confesses that before the fight began Willard's managers took a natural precaution. They arranged to pay the colored man, and he agreed to pretend that he was beaten, in order not to destroy the financial value in moving pictures and otherwise of a white champion.

This late news is said to distress greatly the "sporting fraternity," made up largely of men that would rather watch others fight than do any fighting themselves.

It may be mentioned, by way of comfort to the sporting ones, that since Mr. Johnson fought and lay down, there has been "pulled off" at least one fight that was not "faked." For particulars apply to the man who lost the fight. He is living in Holland.

His fight also went many rounds. For the first few years it looked as though he might win. Then Battling Foch settled the matter.

The confession not surprising by the prize fighter ought to help clergymen in the fight they are making for decency and against proposed legislation that would revive prize ring brutality in many States.

Prize fighting is dishonest, as a matter of course. It is degrading to the public. It collects thieves and criminals of all kinds, providing for them meeting places in their so-called "sporting clubs."

It should also be remembered by military gentlemen, newspapers and others who consider prize fighting necessary to manliness, that the prize ring, more than anything else, spreads venereal disease, the curse of civilization. Prize fighters are, as a class, infected with the worst of blood poisons. They travel about the country in an atmosphere of vile brutality which is called "prize ring glory," and they spread their diseases as they go.

Army records show that these horrible social diseases affect already nearly one-quarter of the total population. That ought to be enough.

A well-advertised prizefighter, carrying disease with him, would destroy with that disease many more human beings than with his fists. Clergymen might well look into this matter.

Every sporting editor knows the statements made here are true, and that the decline of a prize fighter begins, usually, when disease from within has conquered him.

Lloyd George warns little nations against annexing territories not their own. He says, "It is a most fatal error for any people, great or small."

What would be said to that by Disraeli, who made the Queen Empress of India and brought back Cyprus in his hand-bag from Berlin?

What would be said by the ghosts of other British statesmen, who have planted the Union Jack all over the world, from the tip end of South Africa to the North end of this Continent? They were good land collectors, and should be patted with Serbians, Jugo-Slavs and others trying to gather a little real estate here and there before the war dust settles.

TO START BUSINESS BOOM BY SLASHING STEEL AND LUMBER VALUES

BIG CUT IN PRICES COMING

Steel Officials Join Government in Plan to Create Rush of Business

New York, March 15.—The American is informed on the highest authority that industrial leaders and governmental officials have arrived at complete harmony on a plan to revive the commercial life of the nation. The initial step in the comprehensive scheme will be a conference of steel company officials in New York next Tuesday.

At this meeting a schedule of reduced prices will be adopted in compliance with the stabilization plan recently proposed by Secretary of Commerce Redfield.

Wednesday the steel men will go to Washington, their visit to be laid out, to announce their action to George N. Peek, chairman of the Industrial Board for Stabilization of Industry, appointed by Secretary Redfield.

The cut in steel prices will be followed rapidly by similar action in the lumber, coal, cement and other industries, which are now being surveyed by the Industrial Board in co-operation with the principal officials of companies engaged in these lines of manufacture.

Immediately following this, it is stated, the Secretary of Commerce will issue an official statement, telling the public the price cuts have the approval of the government, and that the consumers can begin buying with assurance that bottom has been reached. After each cut in prices the separate industries, it is understood, a similar statement will be issued.

The government will then, to show its good faith, step in and place an order for about 1,000,000 tons of steel rails. This will demonstrate that official Washington is ready to say deflation has been achieved so far as practicable at the present.

Numerous conferences have been held in these industries the past two weeks. Expectation is running high that with the official statements by the government business men everywhere will gather all confidence and come back into the market for materials they have held off buying for weeks.

PRICES TO BE FIXED.

This method of stabilization will meet the ideas of several different authorities, who have urged emergency actions to drive the business stagnation and consequent unemployment.

Senator Sharfroth of Colorado, recently proposed that the Federal Reserve Board issue a statement that deflation had proceeded long enough and that the volume of currency and level of prices be maintained.

The Federal Reserve Board has not done this. But nevertheless the rapid contraction of currency that occurred immediately after the armistice has ceased.

The Industrial Board at Washington, however, will do what Senator Sharfroth suggested the Federal Reserve Board should do. It will fix an certain prices, which will be maintained. It is understood the prices to be agreed on are to be considered minimum figures, and not maximum.

NOTES TO BE REGULATED.

It has been the lack of knowledge of just how far prices would drop that kept business men from making purchases. It is just the support of the action taken during the war, when maximum prices were fixed.

However, the Federal Reserve Board will have control over prices, so far as advances are concerned, it can limit such expansion. This will check a rise.

The cut to be agreed on by the steel men in New York next Tuesday, it is understood, will be for 25% per iron, which represents a reduction of about 25 per cent. A proportionate reduction in steel and steel products also will be made.

The cuts to be made in other industries is stated, will be drastic enough to bring the level down nearer actual views of buyers eager for material, but unwilling to pay what is now being asked.

POLICE CHIEF IS TAKEN ON AUTO RIDE

Nashua, N. H., March 15. — You can't go motoring in Nashua without a number plate—not even if you are chief of police. Chief Fred I. Vinal of Chelmsford, Mass., was arrested here today when the automobile in which he was riding was held up by local police officials. With Chief Vinal was W. Blake Butler of North Chelmsford, owner of the car who was driving. When police officers found out the identity of Chief Vinal they were chagrined, and the car was towed by another machine to the state line.

NEW YORK WAR ON "STRIKE-BREAKERS"

New York, March 16.—The plan of boat owners to use strike-breakers in the operation of tugs and other craft in New York harbor is expected to result in serious trouble if it is carried out. The striking boat-men are reported to be in an ugly mood and it is said they plan to use force to prevent imported strike-breakers from taking the places of union men in this harbor. Seventy per cent. of the men who joined the harbor strike originally have returned to work, according to union officials.

Corporation Pays 20 Million in N. Y. As Income Tax

New York, March 15.—A single payment of $20,000,000 for income taxes was made at the office of "Big Bill" Edwards, internal revenue collector for the Manhattan district. The payment was in certificates of indebtedness by a corporation, and was the largest single payment made this year.

Millions of additional dollars rolled into Mr. Edwards' office, which takes in the Wall street section. The district, one of the smallest in point of area, is the country's biggest income tax producing office.

Last year the office collected about $500,000,000. This year it is expected to collect close to $1,000,000,000, or one-sixth the sum the country will realize under the new revenue bill.

U. S. MUST GUIDE LABOR, SAYS GOMPERS

American Ideals to Influence World in Pathway to Peace and Good Will

By JOHN T. PARKERSON,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, March 15.—America must point the way for labor in the new world emerging from the war.

"The United States will be a friend of humanity in peace just as it was a friend of humanity in war," said Samuel Gompers today, in discussing the recommendation of the commission on international labor legislation to hold the first labor conference in Washington next October.

"It is not only a compliment to America to make such a proposal, but a compliment to labor throughout the world. If the American ideals in the pathway to peace to stand the test of time the American ideals as to the standard of labor, which enlightened leaders of labor in all countries recognize as the world-wide influence in safeguarding peace and good will.

"One of the practical results expected from the peace conference will be a pledge by labor in all free governing and liberty-loving nations to brand Bolshevism as an outlaw and an enemy to civilization. It is thus hoped by organized international efforts, backed by the force, influence and well-ordered governments, forever to rid the earth of disturbing elements which breed anarchy and discontent."

Mr. Gompers said that women would play a prominent part in the new program.

Today the president of the American Federation of Labor has been besieged by French labor leaders desirous as to how to better the condition of French female workers.

The conference, which is proposed for Washington next October, will include delegates from all the countries admitted to the League of Nations.

It will probably last two or three weeks. One of the main plans, it is understood, will be the appointment of a commission to work with the bureau of the League of Nations with the object of bringing world labor into closer consideration, establishing safeguarding against unemployment and the raising of the standards of working and living conditions.

SOMERVILLE WILL GREET HEROES JULY 4

Somerville's Executive Committee in charge of home-coming receptions to returning soldiers, sailors and marines has decided on July 4 as celebration day for soldiers, sailors and marines. The nature of this celebration has not yet been decided on.

A series of meetings will be held in the auditorium of the High School, at which soldiers will be presented engraved honor certificates and honorary medals. Former Mayor A. A. Parry suggested that the city purchase the old Winter Hill Congregational Church on Sycamore street, and establish it as a headquarters. This, he believed, could be purchased for $25,000.

$270,000 HEALTH CAMPAIGN LAGS

The $270,000 health campaign for the Boston Dispensary, the Baby Hygiene and the District Nursing Association shows signs of being unsuccessful, unless the public comes forward with greater enthusiasm and generosity during the remaining week of the drive. Contributions of a little more than $50,000 have been received at the headquarters at No. 555 Boylston street to date. Miss Dorothy Forbes, vice-chairman of the committee, said today: "It appears that the public just now is disinterested. Danger lurks in delay and perhaps when it is too late everybody will realize the urgent need of more nurses, more instruction in baby hygiene and greater equipment for the Boston Dispensary."

PLANS FOR FUNERAL OF W. H. PRIOR

Funeral services for William H. Prior, one of Boston's best known market men, will be held at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, at his home, No. 93 Lyndhurst street, Dorchester. He has been ill about four months. Mr. Prior was of the firm of Prior Brothers, Faneuil Hall Market. He was a member of the Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange and a number of fraternal organizations. A wife and daughter survive him.

SPEEDY PEACE MAY AVERT CALAMITY

Need of Immediate Feeding of Germany Apparent to Check Reds

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent Who Recently Returned from France.

New York, March 15.—The necessity for the immediate feeding of Germany has been apparent for months to all who have lived either in France or on the borders of Germany.

Mr. Lansing's warning at the recent dinner in Paris did not surprise anyone. It was merely a repetition of what he has been saying privately for more than two months past.

As a matter of fact, all the members of the American mission, with one conspicuous exception, have been open for the earliest possible peace.

It may be that the estimable old gentlemen who comprise the lesser members of our mission to Paris were enamoured of the "luxe" of nations ideas. I never heard any of them say anything against it.

But I am sure that Mr. Lansing, Mr. White and Mr. Illies all felt that the most important thing to do was to get a peace signed, and get Germany on a footing that would enable her to pay the indemnity that is to be exacted of her. The trouble was that none of the three I have mentioned had very much weight in the deliberations.

PERIL MAD INFLUENCE.

It is now clear that the Bolshevik peril had a profound influence on the action of the conference. Despite the President's belief that the threats of the cowards were no intermingled with the treaty that they could not be separated the conference managed to separate them in his absence, and now appears to be preparing to get the treaty over and done as quickly as possible.

If this rush is done it may avert calamity. I believe that it would have been far better if it had been done long ago.

Such few witnesses as managed to get out of Russia have repeatedly pointed out in Paris that the strength of the Bolsheviks lay in their control of the food and money supply. For a time these witnesses made a deep impression. It was because of this testimony that the Prince's Island conference was determined upon.

But when none of the Russian factions but the Bolsheviks consented to come into this conference, the idea was abandoned, and again the Bolshevik peril began to loom.

HAVE FAITH IN WILSON.

What the attitude of the French people toward Mr. Wilson will be remains to be seen. I believe it will be friendly. No one in France, any more than anyone here, doubts his sincerity or his absolute belief that the league of nations. And the French, as well as the English, are naturally very much for the league, for it means a great deal to them.

But the effect of the action of the Senate on the French and British statesmen is yet to be marked. Clemenceau and Lloyd George have taken unquestionably as the spokesmen of their people.

But the people or both nations understand fully that the Senate is a coordinate branch of our government, and can overturn the will of the President, if it chooses to do so. Therefore, when word comes to France that enough Senators to upset the League of Nations plan have signed a pledge to upset it, the President's authority in Paris is sure to be lessened.

I believe it was because of the Senate's action that the conference, in Mr. Wilson's absence, found the courage to determine upon a plan for peace without waiting for the League of Nations plan to be incorporated in the treaty. And I believe that in the future deliberations of that body the cabled news from America will carry far more weight than it has in the past.

SENATOR PAGE URGES HONOR FOR EDWARDS

Vermonter Praises Leader of Yankee Division and One of Army's Best Officers

Senator Carroll S. Page of Vermont, who has just returned to his home in Hyde Park in that State from Washington, is strongly in favor of honoring Major-General Clarence R. Edwards. Senator Page is high in the brahs of the man who led the soldiers from the State he represents through the worst battles of the war.

In a statement issued to the American today, Senator Page said:

"I have a very high regard for Major-General Clarence R. Edwards and would be glad, indeed, to see him honored in any proper way. I believe he is one of the very best major-generals in our American army."

Mayor Edward W. Quinn of Cambridge makes the following statement:

"For the splendid service he has rendered his country and the confidence that he has inspired in his men, Major-General Clarence R. Edwards should be recognised and given the distinguished service medal. There ought not to be any delay. I believe that General Edwards should also be promoted for his fine work. We are proud of General Edwards here in Cambridge and hope to see that gallant leader decorated."

Governor Marcus H. Holcomb of Connecticut, Mayor Richard J. Kinsella of Hartford, and Major Morgan G. Bulkeley, Jr., also of Hartford, and former commander of the 101st Machine Gun Battalion, 26th Division, all of whom have seen much of the fighting of Edwards' men, are strongly in favor of any movement which might be started with a view to securing some sort of permanent recognition for Major-General Edwards.

SHOULD HAVE HIGHER RANK.

Major Morgan G. Bulkeley, son of former Governor Morgan G. Bulkeley, and who, as commander of the 101st Machine Gun Battalion, served under General Edwards in France, said:

"It is needless to say that it is my opinion, as well as the opinion of every officer and enlisted man who has had the privilege of serving under General Edwards, that he deserves any honor which it is within the power of this government to confer upon him.

"In regard to his being made a permanent major-general in the army, I can only say that it is my belief that he has been the senior brigadier-general in our permanent establishment for a great many years; and not only on that account but also because of his distinguished service in the late war, I feel that he should be honored with the rank of major-general."

CONNECTICUT IN LINE.

Governor Marcus H. Holcomb of Connecticut says:

"I should be very glad to see the services of Major-General Edwards recognized in the same manner that other generals of his ability and service have been recognized.

"I think very highly of General Edwards, and I have yet to see one of his division who is not enthusiastic in his support. Why he was removed from his command within three weeks of the close of the war, I do not know. The ways of military politics are beyond me.

"I imagine that any indorsement from a non-military source would have little effect in securing for General Edwards the recognition which I believe belongs to him."

PELLETIER RAPS DIVISION OF WAR FUNDS

co few luxuries comforts such as tobacco, cigarettes and chocolate."

Mr. Pelletier says:

"The National Catholic War Council is not satisfied with the distribution of the $100,000,000 which has been or is to be collected by the United War Work campaign for after-the-war welfare work.

"General Pershing's statement relative to 'treasured comforts' does not represent the feeling of the rank and file, any more than his statements regarding conditions at Brest.

"Americans would be surprised to read a detailed statement on the budget, showing the tremendous sums meant for French, British and Italian soldiers, while our American boys are by comparison ignored.

"Americans would be further surprised to compare some of the items as they appear in the budgets of the different organizations which are to do this war work.

"The handiwork of village uplifters is too apparent in parts of the budget. There is an attempt to stress the social and 'moral uplift' work of certain organizations, although this 'moral uplift' is carried to an extent that nauseated the soldiers, is hurting the general campaign and delaying the fulfilling of pledges.

"The work done for the material comfort of the boys, such as that of the Salvation Army, for an example, is the work which counts for popular sympathy and financial support, as we have seen in the last few months.

"The National Catholic War Council is allowed less for all its operations than the Y. M. C. A. gets for salaries, expenses and allotments to its army and overseas staff and clerks alone.

"The budgets of the seven welfare agencies, as approved by official Washington, are:

Young Men's Christian Asso.....	$119,342,042
Young Women's Christian Asso.....	35,377,106
National Catholic War Council (K. of C.).....	95,015,870
Jewish Welfare Board.....	4,293,914
War Camp Community Service.....	18,151,154
American Library Association.....	4,517,800
Salvation Army.....	14,500,000

"Secretary Baker and Secretary Daniels include in their statement an urgent request that pledges made to the United War Work campaign during November be made good.

"Other organizations than the National Catholic War Council are understood to be restive under the discrimination which they allege exists. It is pointed out here that the Salvation Army, of which so much has been said from soldiers coming out of the transports, gets not quite one-quarter as much as the Young Women's Christian Association.

"The committee which perfected the report on the budget, which was indorsed by the Secretary of War and by Secretary of the Navy, consists of Dr. John R. Mott, director general; George W. Perkins, Mrs. Henry P. Davison, John G. Agar, James A. Flan, Mortimer L. Schiff, Myron T. Herrick, Frank A. Vanderlip, George Gordon Battle, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Cleveland H. Dodge.

Predicts a Serious Crisis in Labor Conditions

Williamstown, March 15.—Labor conditions throughout the country will become extremely serious within the next ninety days, declares Henry N. Teague of Williamstown, personal representative of Secretary of Labor W. B. Wilson, unless the States and cities enlarge their building programs.

Mr. Teague has just returned from a tour of the country, investigating labor conditions and visiting Governors of various States and the Mayors of large cities.

"Every lawless man," continues Mr. Teague, "every shiftless man and men who are without employment and with no hope of obtaining work will soon demand a living. The number of people unemployed is growing larger every day."

AUSTRO-GERMAN UNION ALARMS THE SWISS

Statesmen Fear for Confederation if Teutonic Program Goes Through

By ROBERT J. PREW,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, March 15.—Switzerland is viewing with growing concern the movement to unite Germany and German Austria, according to information received here from Berne today.

The effect of such a confederation would leave Switzerland the only country with a German-speaking population not forming a part of the German family. Fears are expressed by some Swiss statesmen that the eventual result would be the breakup up of the Swiss confederation.

(About one-half of the Swiss speak the German language; most of the others speak French.)

The Austrian proposal to make Vorarlberg part of Switzerland has been received at Berne with mixed feelings. The effect on this annexation would be to give the German-speaking part of the Swiss population a preponderance over the section in which French and Italian are spoken.

These proposals, as well as the suggestion to make Tyrol an independent state, have not yet been taken up by the peace conference, nor has official opinion on them yet taken definite shape.

The delegates, however, are prepared to grapple with all Austrian territorial problems as soon as the preliminary terms for Germany are out of the way.

MACHINE GUNS MOW DOWN THE "REDS"

By H. J. GREENWALL,
Exclusive Cable by the International News Service and the London Daily Express.

Berlin, March 14, via London, March 15.—To save time government troops employed machine guns in the execution of captured Spartacans. Many were lined up in the courtyard of the battle-scarred Berlin palace and shot down by machine gunners.

"It is just like Louvain," said a German army officer today, as he surveyed a quarter of the city that had been razed in the fighting.

(Louvain was destroyed by the Germans when they invaded Belgium. It was systematically pillaged and burned.)

The worst damage was done in the district bordering Alexanderplatz, which the Spartacans held for some time. There was considerable looting. One Spartacan prisoner carried diamonds worth 50,000 marks. Another had a fabulous roll of bank notes stolen from the Reichsbank.

The Reichsbank was in the hands of the "Reds" for a time. When the government troops recaptured the building they took seventy sailors. The captives were released, but were subsequently found fighting behind barricades in the streets. After being stripped of their loot they were put to death.

Boston Man Heads Division of War Insurance Bureau

Edward M. Peters of Boston and Medford has just been appointed acting commissioner of the Marine and Seamen's Division of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance at Washington. He is well known here as head of the firm of Edward M. Peters & Co. He left this temporarily to take up war work, and plans to return to Boston as soon as the outstanding business of the marine department has been completed.

Peters went to Washington last Summer, being assigned as assistant to the deputy commissioner of the marine department, and was put in charge of cargo insurance. He was later put in charge of both hulls and cargoes, and was placed at the head of both the marine and seamen's sections, in charge of all departments.

He is well qualified to handle the legal aspects of insurance, being graduated from Boston University Law School with degrees of LL. B. and LL. D.

MAYOR PLANS TO GUARD AGAINST ICE SHORTAGE

Investigator Now Getting First-Hand Facts as to Probable Supply

In view of the predicted ice shortage for the coming Summer, Mayor Peters announces that he has already started an investigation of the situation with the hope of securing enough ice care for the needy, and the city hospitals and other city institutions.

The establishment of a municipal ice plant and the various ice depots in all sections of the city has not been definitely decided. A special investigator will be named by the director of the Mayor, in making a survey and will report to the Mayor soon.

Last Summer the Public Safety Committee handled the municipal ice problem for the poorer sections, but the work will have to be done this year by other agencies. The Mayor and Thomas Hawson, purchasing agent of the city, will confer on the matter of the city's ice supply.

Councillor James J. Watson, just returned from a business trip through the State, says that in sections near Athol, North Dana and Winchendon, the dealers have been cutting ice all Winter 14 to 16 inches thick.

70 P. C. OF NEW YORK HARBOR MEN WORKING

New York, March 15.—Seventy per cent. of the New York harbor strikers are back at work under conditions satisfactory to the Marine Workers' Affiliation, according to an announcement made today by Thomas L. Delahunty, president of the organization. Power thaws 150 vessels remain in strike, he said.

Twenty-five firms owning floating equipment have now signed a satisfactory agreement, it is stated.

GERMANY GIVES UP MERCHANT SHIPS

fore, it will be the first feature incorporated in any peace treaty, preliminary or otherwise, inasmuch as it already has been approved.

At the session of the Supreme War Council this afternoon, President Wilson was given all information concerning the work accomplished by the council in his absence. This covered all terms for Germany that have been tentatively decided upon. President Wilson, it is known, is anxious to take up not only the terms for Germany, but also those that will be given Austria, Turkey and Bulgaria. It is believed these latter terms will be framed in the next three or four days.

There are reports that some of the agreements of various commissions are not entirely acceptable to President Wilson. In certain cases where the American Executive has assumed responsibility he wants the decisions to be along the line of his suggestions.

Some wonderfully arranged programs which are, or may not have been devised with a view to misleading the President have already been tossed overboard. One instance of the suggestions relative to the Star Basin in Rhenish Prussia.

(The Saar Basin is a coal mining community in Rhenish Prussia. There has been an insistent demand in some French quarters that France take over this community along with Alsace and Lorraine.)

The President, while deeply sympathizing with France, will not agree to any change of the Rhine boundaries destined to take up territories not populating with the nationals of the power making the demand.

The President has spent the past twenty-four hours "catching up." In addition to securing information for his own use he has been questioned by the French and British representatives on a number of big questions that have arisen in his absence in order to get his views.

It was said that Premier Orlando would meet the President on Friday afternoon, but he failed to do so. However, it was expected that President Wilson would confer with the Italian statesman today or the day after the latest.

Certain German terms are the most urgent matter on hand, while the Italians are concerned mostly with Austria and Serbia. It is believed that the conference will have reached a definite decision on practically all of the questions affecting Germany Wednesday, and the Germans may be called in about the 20th to hear all of the terms decided upon. It is probable that the meantime involves the old secret treaties, which the European delegates regard as "gentlemen's agreements." The president Wilson's "fourteen points," which call for the wiping out of all secret agreements."

NEWTON TEACHERS DEMAND 'THRIFT WAGE' TO AVOID POORHOUSE

MANY ARE LEAVING CITY

Impossible to Live on Present Income; Plead for Simple Justice

Living wage for teachers? A scandal. Why should teachers be paid merely enough to live on? Give them a "thrift wage."

This is the slogan of Newton teachers in their campaign for higher salaries. A concerted movement is on foot to get increases that will at least keep pace with the increase in cost of living. But this is not enough. Any adequately paid worker receives enough to save a little and provide for old age. Why not teachers?

Here is what the teachers themselves say in a pamphlet issued to launch their salary drive:

"To talk of a living wage for teachers is an outrage. A living wage means the almshouse or the old ladies' home when they get through earning a living wage."

And here are some of the facts pointed out:

Sixty teachers, or about 20 per cent. of the entire teaching force of Newton, left last year.

Many of the best teachers go to other places where salaries are higher. It is impossible to replace them with adequate successors at the salaries offered.

Massachusetts Normal School attendance has decreased 27.7 per cent. since 1916-17.

During the past five years the cost of living has increased 65 per cent.; teachers' salaries have increased 12.3 per cent.; a net loss which anyone can figure out for himself.

At the present time the living expenses of most teachers exceed their salaries.

AN ITEMIZED ACCOUNT.

A questionnaire was recently sent to teachers, asking that they itemize their expenses and state their salary.

Here is the statement of a grade teacher receiving the maximum salary, $1,079: Clothing, $200; board and room, $480; carfare, $10; laundry, $2 (she does her own as a rule); gifts (church, charity, etc.), $30; insurance, $100; co-operative bank, $50; retirement fund, $60; Liberty Bonds and other small investments, $197; extras, $40; total, $1125; music, $10; educational courses, $45. Total, $1,359; deficit, $280.

This teacher had a small bank account on which she was obliged to draw. At the end of nine years of teaching in Newton she had the same amount of cash in the bank as when she went there, in other words, although she made small investments, she was unable to accumulate any emergency fund or ready money. In case of a long illness, an operation or dentistry, she would have faced real need.

But the argument which the teachers put forth with most emphasis is not their own need. It is the need of school children for good teachers. This is what Miss Lena Hovenden says, in an appeal to the public to carry the matter to the Aldermen and School Board:

SCHOOLS DETERIORATING.

"Our schools are rapidly deteriorating under these conditions. Unless immediate steps are taken the deterioration during the next year is going to be even more rapid. There is one, and only one, way to retain Newton schools to their relative position they have recently held in this country, and that is by increasing the salaries of the teachers.

"If this is not done, and done at once, the teaching of the Newton children is bound to go to the hands of a far different class of teachers than we have had. We are pleading, not for the teachers of Newton, but for the boys and girls of Newton—your children, and the future citizens of this country."

A new salary schedule has been presented to the school board, with a plea from the teachers that it be adopted, and the Board of Aldermen has been asked for an appropriation which would provide for an increase. In salaries of 10 per cent. Parents of school children are being urged to use their influence to get these measures adopted, by speaking, writing or telephoning to members of the Board of Aldermen and to the school committee.

Miss Mabel Turner, former school garden supervisor in Malden, who recently retired to take charge of a similar work in Ipswich, is at the home of R. T. The 30 acres of the estate have been turned over to her and her assistants to farm and they will instruct the children on these grounds.

MACK SAYS WILSON WILL BE RE-ELECTED

Richmond, Va., March 15.—President Wilson's renomination and re-election in 1920 was predicted here by Norman E. Mack of Buffalo, N. Y., national Democratic chairman from 1908 to 1912. He picked Harding, Pershing and Wood as the three Republican possibilities.

Would Make Judges Occupy Cells of Prisoners

A requirement that all judges "shall spend at least twenty-four hours in a cell in every prison to which they are accustomed to sentence offenders," is the unique recommendation contained in some suggested amendments to the Constitution of the United States by Edward Jones Cox of Newtonville, a retired Boston school teacher.

In a pamphlet entitled, "Some Mutes in America's Eye," Mr. Cox declares:

"If a boy daubs paint on a building, it is better to make him scrub it off than to compel his parents to pay a fine. Judges need to realize what it means to sentence offenders to long terms of imprisonment."

400 CARS WILL TAKE THE 26TH TO AYER

Plan to Make Transfer of Heroes From Boston in One Day.

By THOMAS F. PHELAN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, March 15.—From a railroad standpoint, engaged in making plans for the transportation of 26,000 men of the 26th Division from Boston to this cantonment it was learned today that it will necessitate the use of 400 passenger coaches to complete the movement in one day.

The work of mobilizing these coaches began at earnest today. It is expected the job will be finished within two weeks. The twenty-eight trains placed end for end would make a line six miles long. Each train will consist of fourteen coaches. They will be made up in the freight transfer and classification yard.

"It will require 2,400 men to operate the trains, including engineers, conductors and trainmen," said the railroad official.

"All trains will be handled from the Ayer end. It is planned to have the first train leave here at 5:45 a. m., and reach Boston in fifty-five minutes. The movement of the trains will leave at intervals of ten minutes. Each train will have the right of way. The line will be cleared of the tracks of the Fitchburg and Stony Brook division to the freight yards at Rutherford avenue, Charlestown, where the men will be taken aboard.

"The soldiers will march from the cantonment to the rest area, where they will receive a good meal. After their clothing and turn them over to the men in charge of the sanitary corps machine, to be cleaned. Before that, however, the men will be given a substantial meal.

TAX OFFICE OPEN FOR LATE ONES TO MIDNIGHT

Steady Stream of "Customers" Handled With Despatch at Little Building

Income tax headquarters in the Little Building will remain open until midnight for the accommodation of belated taxpayers who have postponed filing their returns until the last minute.

The closing hours for filing returns found the many officials connected by income tax officials doing a land-office business, as on previous days. There was, however, no congestion during the opening hours, and the steady stream of taxpayers was handled with despatch.

Yesterday's approximately 20,000 individuals were cared for by the augmented force of 250 clerks and deputies. Today's quota promises to exceed any previous day's business.

NEWSPAPERS THANKED.

The thanks of Chief Deputy Collector Leary was extended the newspapers today for their assistance in collecting the big tax, and it was announced that 50 per cent. of the returns of the past few days had been received by mail following the publicity given the desirability of sending returns by mail.

Approximately 75,000 returns remain to be received during the next twenty-four hours. Returns sent by mail and bearing a postmark not later than midnight tonight will be accepted without penalty, it was announced today.

Praise from all sides has been expressed for the orderly and systematic manner in which Collector John F. Malley and his deputies have handled the complicated problem presented by more than 200,000 returns.

A BILLION PAID IN.

Dispatches today from Washington said that the estimate in Income Tax Collector Roper's office was that something more than four million persons and concerns will have filed individual returns of income tax time limit tonight, and that the total payments will have reached nearly $1,000,000,000.

Persons with moderate incomes are nearly all making the complete payment with the filing of the schedule, so there is no means of estimating what the receipts today will total.

Large income taxpayers have intricate bookkeeping to complete a schedule, and thousands of blanks are being received by mail. Income estimated accompanied by one-fourth of the tax on that amount.

The swollen population of the city at the quartermaster siding, near Davis crossing, at the south side of Camp Dix, Disembarkation point, for the men will march to the rest area, where they will receive a change of their clothing and turn them over to the men in charge of the sanitary corps machine, to be cleaned. Before that, however, the men will be given a substantial meal.

Among the railroad officials making plans for the disposition of the troops are J. H. Hustis, inland traffic agent; L. A. McNamara, general agent American Railway Association; E. C. Goodrow, camp agent American Railway Association; J. E. Mahoney, Ayer general agent, Boston & Maine road, and T. F. McGuane, general yard master. Worcester, March 15.—The $45,000 fee of Attorney Charles F. Choate of Boston in the McGrath will case was allowed today by the Superior Court.

real estate as if he were unmarried.

CHARGED DESERTION.

He alleged that, beginning Jan. 1, 1912, Mrs. Mellen had continually absented herself from his home without his consent, and sometimes without his knowledge, for periods of from one to four weeks. He stated that on Sept. 17, while Mrs. Mellen was away from home, she learned that he had acquired letters written by her and that she had since remained away.

The case was heard before Probate Judge Edward T. Slocum at Pittsfield last September. A decision justifying Mr. Mellen in living apart from his wife on the ground of desertion was handed down by Judge Slocum in September 28. The court also granted Mr. Mellen the right to convey land as if he were a single man.

Mrs. Mellen's counsel had an appeal from the separation decree on September 30 on the ground that Mrs. Mellen was aggrieved by the Probate Court's decision that her husband was living apart from her for justifiable cause. Hearing on the appeal is set for the May term of the Supreme Court.

WIFE SUES FOR DIVORCE.

Mrs. Mellen also filed a suit for divorce on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment. A counter-petition was filed on behalf of Mellen to have the divorce petition annulled on the ground that Mr. Mellen's legal residence was in New Haven, not Stockbridge.

At the September hearing Mr. Mellen read more than a score of letters which were written by Mrs. Mellen "in her hours of loneliness" to Harry Douglas Brown, assistant manager of the Hall Vanderbilt, New York. In these letters Mrs. Mellen addressed Mr. Brown as "Dearest Dear," and signed herself "Fondly, Kitten."

TELLS OF FAMILY QUARRELS.

A further sensation was sprung when ex-President Mellen testified as to family quarrels in which Mrs. Mellen "blacked his eye" and hit him on the head with "a pink marble egg. He admitted striking Mrs. Mellen "with the flat of his hand" during one particularly strenuous set-to.

ROB LUNCH ROOM IN WEST END AT GUN POINT

Bandits Hold Up Waldorf Clerk and Rifle Till of $60

Austin Cole, counter man in the Waldorf Lunch at No. 12 Bowdoin square, was held up at the point of revolvers early today by two gunmen and the cash register rifled of $60.

Austin was behind the counter when the two men entered and came up, as he thought, to get a check. Simultaneously the men drew guns as they reached the desk and ordered him to throw up his hands. Cole complied and one of them rifled the register, while the other one kept Cole and several others in the restaurant covered with his revolver.

When they had taken all the money in the cash register they backed to the door, still covering Cole. Then they turned and fled.

Cole attempted to pursue them down Green street, but lost them in the dark. He then went to the Joy street station, where he gave the police a description of the gunmen.

The Doherty auto was forced upon the sidewalk, injuring Meech, Meech sued the owners of both machines, the court ordering a verdict for Miss Doherty.

DR. WILKINS IS AGAIN GRILLED BY POLICE

Physician's Stories of Wife's Death Now Said to Conflict

Mineola, N. Y., March 15.—In an effort to check up alleged discrepancies that have appeared in the stories told by Dr. Walter Keene Wilkins of how his wife, Mrs. Julia Wilkins, was slain and he was assaulted by three robbers at their Long Branch home on the night of February 27, Dr. Wilkins was closely examined today by District Attorney Charles R. Weeks of Nassau county, County Coroner Nee, Detective William J. Burns and other investigators present at the interview.

Despite the assertions of his attorneys, Louis Friess, that the aged physician has constantly stuck to the tale he gave to the police when the crime was discovered, county authorities declare that there are many variations and some of them important.

WEEK SECOND WILL.

A later will of Mrs. Wilkins than the one discovered by her husband, dated 1903, in which she disposes of a $65,000 estate by giving it to charity, is now sought by detectives. The Schindler National Detective Agency has learned that on September 10 last Mrs. Wilkins confided to a neighbor, a Mrs. Ducompe, that she had left all her property to Dr. Wilkins. Dr. Wilkins and his attorney deny all knowledge of a paper of this kind.

When Dr. Wilkins first told the story of the attack by the three robbers to the police he declared that he had been struck on the head with such force as to render him unconscious. In proof of this he showed a derby hat with a broken crown. His physician, however, have found no marks on his head.

In a later story, according to the police, Dr. Wilkins said that after being struck he grappled with one of the men and injured his arm. Blood stains that were on his shirt and tie he explained came there when his wife threw her arms about his neck after she had been struck.

Coroner Nee, who performed the second autopsy on the woman's body, asserts that she was struck on the head eighteen times by a hammer and that she could not possibly have beenable to make any move. Dr. Wilkins told the police that his wife screamed a number of times but that she could not awaken to find anyone for who help to come.

COLLIE DOG UNINJURED.

Another point on which Dr. Wilkins was closely questioned today was how the other half of the house took assaults. A watch was found rapped about the hammer used to kill Mrs. Wilkins, happened to miss his victim. Detectives found it under his bed.

The collie dog owned by Mrs. Wilkins, which Dr. Wilkins said the robbers cruelly beat, was examined by a veterinary and found to bear no evidence of the kind. Dr. Wilkins told the police that the dog had been knocked unconscious and that was why he hadn't barked.

PRETTY ANKLES ONCE MORE TO GREET JURY

Betty Inch's Counsel Solves Problem of Witness Stand Spite Fence

New York, March 15.—"Talking ankles"—like those that make Howard Chandler Christy hate Venus—the ankles of pretty Betty Inch, are again carrying a message to the jurors at her second trial for extortion in the criminal branch of the Supreme Court.

It was announced by Mrs. Inch's counsel that she will not be called to the witness stand around which a "spite fence" had been built to save the blushes of susceptible jurors. Instead, she took a seat at the counsel table where each of the twelve men in the jury box might have an obstructed view.

Mrs. Inch is accused of having extorted $215 from Eugene P. Herrman, president of the Herrman Motor Truck Company, by using the name of one May Hayes. At the time of the first trial the mysterious young woman could not be located, but now she is on hand and ready to testify in Mrs. Inch's behalf.

Why Not Give the Fighting Man as Generous a Bonus as Is Granted the Civilian?

Congress voted to the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines, who did the fighting, a bonus of $60. The same Congress voted to give all civilian employes of the government at Washington a bonus of $240. This is at the rate of $20 per month in addition to their salaries.

If the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines get a bonus of six months' pay in addition to the bonus of $60 they will be receiving only as much of a bonus as the men who without risk to life or personal safety served the government at Washington---or $240.

And yet there are some men who say that if six months' pay is given to Soldiers, Sailors and Marines the $60 bonus ought to be substracted from it.

ARE THEY AMERICANS?

OLNEY FAVORS SIX MONTHS WAR BONUS

Dedham Congressman Ready to Vote for Measure to Aid Service Men

All Congressman Richard Olney of Dedham wants is a chance to vote for a bill providing for six months' pay for soldiers, sailors and marines as the Boston American has for months advocated, and was the first to advocate.

Writing his views to the American, Congressman Olney declared he hoped for the opportunity in the last Congress, and before the revenue bill passed he sought to have the bonus of $60 which it carried for the fighting men, increased to at least $100.

Congressman Olney, who is going back when the new Congress opens, will probably have a chance to vote for such a bill to judge from the sentiment among Senators and Congressmen viewed several members and urged that the bonus be raised from $60 to at least $100.

The American, through the Washington correspondent of the Soldiers' Service Bureau, verified the fact that civilian employes in Washington have been voted a bonus of $240 in addition to their regular salaries, and salaries which were increased during the war.

This is $180 more than the men who did the actual fighting have received outside of their regular salaries, which in most cases, were approximately $20 a month, for the soldiers, sailors and marines.

It may hastily be asked by the fighting men: "Aren't our services at least as valuable as the services of clerks and secretaries in Washington who earned good salaries and were in no danger of loss of life or mutilation and whose personal safety was never threatened?"

The sum these clerks and civilian employes will receive as a bonus is just $180 more than privates, officers, even generals of the fighting forces will receive as a bonus under the revenue act.

The same Congress that voted the $240 bonus to the civilian employes voted only $60 to soldiers, sailors and marines without regard to rank.

AWAIT ACTION OF CONGRESS.

What will the incoming Congress do?

Bear this in mind: If the new Congress votes six months' pay to every soldier, sailor and marine who took part in the war, for all men with the rank of private at least, it will mean an amount equal only to the bonus granted to civilian employes of the government in Washington.

And if you feel that the fighting men of the nation are entitled to at least as much as the clerks ad secretaries at Washington, valuable as their services were during the war, become one of the great army of petitioners by signing the Boston American's petition. And don't be content with that. Sit down now and write to your Congressman and Senator telling him you expect him to do his duty by the soldiers, sailors and marines by voting for six months' pay for each one of them, in addition to the $60 bonus each will receive.

MOOSE INDORSE PETITION.

Several lodges of the Moose have indorsed the American's petition calling upon the Secretaries of War and the Navy to secure six months' pay for all of Uncle Sam's honorably discharged service men. Malden Lodge No. 648 is the latest to fall in line, which they do with a hearty indorsement of the purposes of the petition, Secretary Thomas A. Lyons writes.

The Fish Workers' Union of Gloucester also want to be counted in as loyal to the men of the service. They adopted resolutions at a recent meeting heartily indorsing and praising the American and other Hearst newspapers for their stand in this matter. A copy of the resolutions was forwarded by A. Drake, secretary.

The Soldiers' Service Bureau of the Boston American has been established for the purpose of giving help to the soldiers and sailors of the United States Army and Navy. Answers to questions as to localion of the various units appear every day in this column. Prominent attorneys are always ready and anxious to clear up difficulties of a legal nature. Any unemployed enlisted man will be given the help of the department in securing a position, and the discharge of soldiers because of distress among the home folks will be facilitated.

The department is doubly efficient, as it is not confined to a question and answer column, but is working in connection with similar bureaus in Hearst's New York American, Atlanta Georgian, Chicago Herald and Examiner, San Francisco Examiner and Los Angeles Examiner. The headquarters is in Washington.

Any suggestions for broadening the scope of the bureau will be gratefully received.

DELUGE OF TRADE FAVORS COST PRICE MARTS

There was a big call, too, for flounders—the delicious filet of sole of hotels and restaurants—and for steak cod. Many of the customers said they were following the example of the six "Take It From Me" girls, who are eating fish three times a day.

Customers of the stores continue to ask if there is any danger of the American stores closing. The American stores will continue to offer fish at cost daily and Saturday evening indefinitely. When the supply of frozen fish is exhausted the American stores plan to offer fish at cost.

The deluge of letters asking the fish editor to open marts in places not yet served by American stores continues to grow heavier each day. The fish editor cannot be patient. The plans for serving everyone in New England with fish at cost are going forward rapidly.

While these plans are being perfected the American must continue daily to see that the thousands of persons who have grown accustomed to buying fish at cost in the Boston American fish stores already established are supplied with seafoods at 5 and 6 cents a pound.

To keep the thirteen stores constantly supplied with enough fish to serve thousands of customers is no mean task. It requires the services of a squad of motor trucks and many employes.

The American expects to announce the opening of a Boston American Fish Store in Worcester early next week. Several other stores in the immediate vicinity of Boston are also booked for early openings.

In addition to the task of keeping the stores supplied with fish their managers have the added task of making an inspection of them all and keeping them in a healthful condition.

Reports from the stores indicate that without exception the Boston American stores have done the biggest volume of business ever known in the fish trade during the past twelve hours. This is encouraging. It shows that the public appreciates the American's spirit in opening these stores and shows that the public is learning to make a more extended use of fish.

FISH DIET GIRLS GLORY IN TEST

Ready to Continue for Another Week—Examinations Monday to Prove Its Value

"We wouldn't mind keeping to the fish diet another week. Nobody need pity us."

Their sixth day finished in the Chinese Gardens, this was the verdict of the six young ladies who, after their eighteenth fish meal, are still not tired of fish nor, apparently, harmed by their experiment. Today, Saturday, in addition to a matinee and an evening performance, there was an extra rehearsal. So fish has stood its test today if ever.

The menu for Saturday was as follows, as printed on the card placed beside each place in the Chinese restaurant of the Shepard stores:

The Misses Alyse Sawyer, Hello Sawyer, Theresa Wardwell, Estel White, Maudie Clifton and Lucretia Craig of the "Take It From Me Company," playing at the Shubert Theatre, are eating fish three times a day every day a week, under a physician's supervision, as a test of the health efficacy of a fish diet. This experiment has been carried on under the supervision of the Boston American in the Chinese Gardens of the Shepard Stores. Their today's menu follows:

BREAKFAST—10 A. M.
Stewed prunes with whipped cream.
Broiled salt mackerel.
Baked potato. Rolls. Coffee, Tea, Milk.
LUNCHEON AT 1.
Scalloped oysters. Rolls.
Dessert.
Tea, Coffee, Milk.
DINNER—6 P. M.
Bake-a-bean fish.
Brussels sprouts.
Plain salad.
Cheese. Cafe noir.

Tomorrow—Sunday—the young ladies conclude their fish diet at a local hotel. Monday they have their final examination, which will determine the effects of an all-the-week, three-times-a-day fish diet, on healthy, normal, young women.

WOULD GIVE ALL HEROES EXTRA YEAR'S PAY

Baer of North Dakota to Introduce Big Bonus Bill in Next Congress

By J. BART CAMPBELL.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, March 13.—A bill providing that all American soldiers, sailors and marines who served in the late war receive one year's additional pay from the time of their discharge from active service will be presented to the next Congress by Representative Baer, independent Republican of North Dakota, he stated today.

"I have indisputable evidence that an overwhelming number of discharged soldiers, especially those with dependents, are in pressing needs of funds to reinstate them in civil life," Baer declared.

He said that his attention had been called to an increasing delay in the payment to discharged service men of the $60 bonus to which they were entitled by a provision of the revenue bill passed during the final days of the last Congress. To secure this, the ex-soldier, the ex-sailor and the ex-marine must mail his application for it, with his discharge papers, to an agency in Washington of the War Department. Under present conditions weeks are likely to elapse before a check for $60 is received by discharged service men who have returned to parts of the country remote from Washington.

"The American nation owes a debt to its soldiers, sailors and marines which must be paid," Baer continued. "Are we to continue to permit men who fought and bled under the American flag to become entangled in red tape? A grave responsibility rests upon Congress. The last Congress failed to enact important legislation affecting the immediate and future welfare of those who saw service in the war. Let us trust that the next Congress will speedily pass such legislation."

BANDITS TAKE TIME TO SELECT JEWELS

Chicago, March 15.—Leisurely bandits who held up the Ginsburg jewelry store, spent half an hour selecting the most valuable jewels and throwing others aside. They compelled the clerk, a girl, who was alone just before the close of business, to stand with her face against the wall while they made their selections. They left with gems worth $10,000.

FIRE LOSSES IN ADAMS ARE LOW

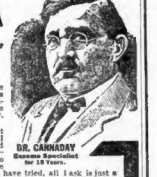
Adams, March 15.—With a fire loss of only $1,185 on buildings and $1,485 on contents, a total of $2,632 during the year 1918, the town of Adams, which has only a volunteer department, lays claim to having as low a fire loss as any other town of its size in the country.

ATTORNEY CHARGES BRIBERY ATTEMPTS

Just before the adjournment of the Superior Criminal Court, where Dr. Neshan Barronian of Dover street is on trial on an indictment charging him with perjury, his counsel, Fred E. Norton, in opening the case for the defence, said that he would "show that Mrs. Barronian, through her counsel, Damon E. Hall, authorized Hall to accept from me the sum of $2,000 and Hall said if it were paid he would cause this indictment to be disposed of without trial. We will show that later, when Mr. McCallum came into the case, another proposition was made by Mrs. Barronian through her counsel, Mr. McCallum, to accept $1,500, and he said he would have the indictment disposed of without trial if the money was paid."

ECZEMA

Also called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Water Poison, Weeping Skin, etc.



For fifteen years I have been treating one disease alone, ECZEMA, I have handled over one million cases. I do not pretend to know it all, but I am convinced the disease is due to an excess of acid in the blood, and closely related to rheumatism and cancer. This acid must be removed.

Eczema is called by some people Itch, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Weeping Skin, etc. I am fully convinced Eczema is a curable disease, and when I say it can be cured, I mean just what I say—CURED, and not merely patched up for a while to return worse than before. It makes no difference what other doctors have told you, or what all you have tried, all I ask is just a chance to prove to you that this vast experience has taught me a great deal that would be of help to you. If you will write me today I will send you a free trial of my mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will do more to convince you than I or anyone else could in a month's preaching. It's all up to you. If you suffer any more with eczema and refuse to merely write to me for free trial, just blame yourself. No matter where you live, I have treated your neighbors. Merely dropping me a postal today is likely to give you more real comfort in a week than you ever expected to enjoy again. Do it right now, your very life may be at stake.

Send this notice to some poor sufferer from eczema. It will be a kind act by you.

Get the Merchants' Good Will, Manufacturers

Do not try to load up the retail storekeeper with goods that are not well advertised to the consumer, Mr. Manufacturer.

Do not try to make the retailer believe that people will demand your goods over his counter unless you are advertising these goods to the people of this city.

The great consumer medium of advertising is the daily newspaper.

And because it does reach everybody who buys, it is also the ideal "dealer medium."

Goods advertised in the newspapers have the dealer's support because his customers know them and ask for them.

FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE IS A TONIC OF GREAT FOOD VALUE

Builds New Flesh and Strength Because of Real Nourishment It Contains.

A real tonic food like Father John's Medicine contains within itself the food properties and body-building nourishment which give renewed strength and flesh. Too many so-called "tonics" are merely stimulants of appetite and depend for their upbuilding effect upon the other food which the patient may happen to eat.

Expert chemical tests have proven that Father John's Medicine is abounding in rich nourishment. A teaspoonful of Father John's Medicine is proven by these tests to contain six times more nourishment than the same quantity of pure milk, seven and one-half times more than the same quantity of oysters and two and one-half times more nourishment than beef steak.

Do not allow yourself to become weak, thin and run-down because when you are in this condition you are an easy victim to many different disease germs.

Because Father John's Medicine is guaranteed free from alcohol or dangerous daugs in any form, it is the safe medicine for you to use.

CONTINUE FIGHT FOR HONEST GAS BILLS

Roxbury Woman to Appeal to Mayor for Hall for Mass Meeting

"Do you want honest gas bills?

"Do you want cheaper gas light?

"If so, sign your name here and help us win our rights."

That is the propaganda Mrs. Bessie Waldman of No. 79 Maywood street, Roxbury, is using in her fight against the Boston Consolidated Gas Light Company, which has, she complains, grievously overcharged her without as yet making satisfactory adjustment.

PETITIONS TO SIGN.

The first of the signs which Mrs. Waldman is having made to attract the attention of dissatisfied customers will be placed in the window of a neighborhood store today. Inside will be found petitions for interested parties to sign, which Mrs. Waldman believes will aid in making the mass meeting of indignant consumers soon to be called a record-breaking public gathering.

"I am experiencing great difficulty in securing a suitable hall for this meeting," Mrs. Waldman told the American, "due to the fact that the poor people who are most vitally interested cannot afford to rent one. However, I intend writing Mayor Peters and asking his assistance in securing a proper meeting place."

There is a test meter in the basement of Mrs. Waldman's residence, placed there by the company for a week's record. The week will expire on Monday, and both Mrs. Waldman and company officials are awaiting with interest the result of the test.

Meantime, other cases of apparent injustice are being called to the attention of the American, the most general complaint being that no satisfaction was secured when the company was asked to adjust sudden increases in price for which there was no ready explanation.

STORE BILLS' JUMP.

John Lakin conducts a delicatessen store at No. 372 Warren street, Roxbury. For months his gas bill averaged from 53 to $4. A statement which he received on January 17, however, totals $25.40, divided into two charges, one for $13.40 and the other for $13.

Mr. Lakin protested and refused to pay until the matter was adjusted. His next statement was for $9. A threat to shut off the gas came to nothing, and the bills are pending.

The meter of Mrs. Annie Murray of No. 22 Cortes street apparently runs quite as merrily when she is not at home as it does when she is using gas in her three-room apartment. Mrs. Murray visited the American office to state that on October 10 her bill was $1.28. She left home on December 1 and did not return until March 1, she declares.

Shortly after her return a gas company inspector visited her apartment for the purpose of reading her meter. The meter, Mrs. Murray states, was no high up on the wall that the inspector could not reach it, although she says he broke a shelf in his attempted climb.

Feminine ingenuity asserted itself, and Mrs. Murray says she loaned the inspector a mirror, with which he read the meter.

On March 5 Mr. Murray received a gas bill for $28.60. She visited the gas company offices and complained, but asserts that she could get no satisfaction.

"So I ordered them to take out the meter," she concluded.

SAYS BILLS DOUBLED.

Isaac Shurman of No. 24 Dawson street, Dorchester, is in the real estate business.

"The bills of almost all my tenants have doubled recently," Mr. Shurman told the American. "I have to listen to their complaints, and I know that they are justified, because my own bills have increased.

"Ordinarily my gas bill averages $4 monthly. On November 27 I received a bill for $5.10; December 30 the charge was $10.60; January 28, $7.30, and February 26, $8.30.

"I have complained to the gas company, but the only satisfaction I can get is that the meter has been tested and found to be correct."

Young and inexperienced boys read the meters for the gas company, according to M. Steinert of No. 1862 Washington street, who declares that in November, December and January he used double the gas he does now, but that his bills now are double what they were then. Where he formerly turned on the lights at 3:30 p. m., now waits until 6 o'clock—but conservation only leads to higher charges, he told the American.

EXTRA WEAR FROM SHOES

"A year ago I had my shoes re-soled with Neolin Soles. The soles are still in service, and it looks as if I would not be able to wear them out, because the uppers are going first," said W. C. Dickinson, of New Haven, Conn.

Good repair shops everywhere carry these tough and durable soles. See for yourself how long they last by having them put on a pair of old shoes. Or if you are in need of new shoes buy them with Neolin Soles. They cost no more than shoes that give less wear, and you need fewer pairs. They come in many styles for men, women, and children.

Neolin Soles are created by Science to be comfortable and waterproof, as well as long-wearing. They are made by The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., Akron, Ohio, who also make Wingfoot Heels—guaranteed to outwear all other heels.

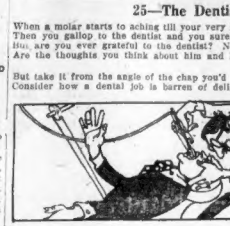
How Would You Like to Be?

By Morton Birge

25—The Dentist.

When a molar starts to aching till your very heart is breaking
Then you gallop to the dentist and you surely get your "fill,"
But, are you ever grateful to the dentist? No! How hateful!
Are the thoughts you think about him and his busy little drill!

But take it from the angle of the chap you'd like to strangle,
Consider how a dental job is barren of delight.



With a string of patients yelling and continually telling
How they used to have a lovely man who never hurt a mite.

Oh, it's drill and drill and drill 'em, though they swear you're bound to kill 'em,
You drill enough to merit you a military cross,
But all the "cross" you gather is the talk of those who'd rather
Delay until their teeth are near the point of total loss.

WOMAN BARRED FROM ENTERING CAMP DEVENS

Authorities Take Action Toward Moral Cleanup Before 26th Arrives

Camp Devens, March 15.—An official edict barring Mrs. Louis Bradley, wife of a soldier confined in the guard house, from camp has caused a stir here. The order reads:

"For just cause, Mrs. Louis Bradley (colored) is denied the privilege of entering this camp and will not be allowed on the reservation.

"By Command of Major-General McValo

"—A. G. LOTT,
Colonel Cavalry, U. S. A., Executive Officer."

The action is said to be another step being taken by the authorities to rid the camp and its vicinity of every vestige of vice.

Recently State police officials have found several women of questionable characters who have been peddling intoxicants and narcotics to soldiers at secluded corners of the camp.

Woman Doctor Warns Girls of Dangers of 'Slouch' Walk

New York, March 15.—"Drop the 'slouch' walk and posture," is the advice given to the girls of America by Dr. Mary Merritt Crawford, who worked on French battlefields and knows much about health laws. She advises American girls to be "comrades in health" to the fine, clean, upstanding youths who are returning from the front.

"The 'slouch' walk is ruinous to the health," she said. "We were made to stand upright. The present day slouch has caused a great many women to cast into the discard their 'first corsets,' those of narrow—the abdominal muscles. It does not permit the proper exercise of the lungs and, if not corrected, will result in a great increase in tuberculosis."

General McCain's drastic action against Mrs. Bradley is being hailed as the signal of the complete protection of the men of New England's own 26th Division when they flock into this camp and its surroundings.

Mrs. Bradley, according to investigations by the camp inspector's office, had received some property alleged to have been stolen by her husband and other negroes here and it was alleged that they were maintaining a questionable resort for soldiers.

REGULARS ARE BLAMED FOR JAP RIOTS

State Department Awaits Full Reports of Attack at Tientsin

Washington, March 15.—Members of the 15th Regular Infantry are blamed by the Navy Department for the anti-Japanese demonstrations occurring in Tientsin, China. Minister Reinsch at Pekin has advised the State Department that First Secretary Spencer has been sent from Pekin to Tientsin to make a complete investigation.

Acting Secretary of State Polk declined to discuss the matter in the absence of a full report from the minister.

A press report to the effect that American marines were engaged in the trouble was discredited at the Navy Department for the reason that there are no marines stationed at Tientsin. There is a force of several hundred at Pekin, which is several hours' distant from Tientsin.

Navy officials said it was possible a vessel or vessels might have arrived at Tientsin which have not been officially reported and that the marines may have gone ashore from these ships. Unless this be true, the Navy Department believes that if troops took part in the rioting they were soldiers of the 15th Regular Infantry, now stationed at Tientsin. Secretary Polk said he was not in a position to deny or affirm the report that Americans in uniform had raided the Japanese consulate and wounded the Japanese consul. If this has been done, it was pointed out, it will compel an apology from the United States for violation of the consulate of a friendly power and punishment of those guilty.

The Stage

BIG CHANCE AND 'ADAM AND EVA' HERE

I am not exactly an old man, but things have been changing so rapidly the last few years that I find myself getting into a grandfatherly attitude and beginning, "When I was a boy growing up——"

It's a fact, though, that the tone of our books and plays have changed most radically in the last ten years or so.

In the fiction of a decade ago, and fifty years before that, the hero was a young man who had come down through all sorts of temptations, and offered his sweetheart in the last chapter or the final tableau a pure heart and the innocence of a Galahad.

The heroine was a lily, as innocent as she was sweet, and as sheltered from the muck of the world as a hothouse flower from a cold blast.

Whether this sort of literature was pure mush and romantic nonsense and whether the average young couple, come together after both have liberally spattered themselves with sins, I am not enough of a sociologist to declare.

I do know that the romantic stuff didn't do one's ideals any harm, while the realism of the present time won't to them any good.

A Hero of Romance

"Blind Youth," in which Lou Tellegen is introduced as the "romantic hero." This gentleman has lived for four years with a woman to whom he wasn't married, been drunk for about a year when the first act opens, and instead of being swept into the rubbish heap, survives to reform, win a sweet girl and rescue a younger brother from the wiles of his former mistress.

Turning from that I read the summary of the plot of "The Big Chance," in which Mary Nash appears at the Majestic next week.

His Mary Nash

"Mary Delano is in love with Charlie Hickson, the scapegrace son of the factory owner. She loves this man devotedly, but refuses to marry him for fear people will say she married for his money. So they go to New York and live together in a well-furnished apartment, where she is soon thrown into the society of a circle of good for nothings."

Mary, you understand, is the heroine of this entertainment, not the adventuress. She breaks into the war and becomes a reformed and noble character.

"The Crowded Hour," which leaves town tonight, offered a heroine who had broken up a home, lived openly with the man and was saucy to the man's wife in the first act. The curtain descends on her in an angelic attitude.

In "Lombardi Limited," the audience applauded the engagement of a guileless model who went around during the first two acts inviting Satan to admit her into his camp.

Really the only respectable plays are the musical comedies and the sob and cut farces like "A Cure for Curables," and "Nothing But Lies." These two farces, incidentally, are as clean as a whistle.

It is obvious that the public attitude towards speckled ladies and young men whose wild oats have been copious, has changed entirely in the last few years, or the police would have interfered in the cases of some extreme plays of this type.

Can't Jail Audiences

You can't jail audiences, or at least not very many at a time, and the authorities have to take their attitude from that of the general public. Certain churches used to perform at the theatre, and even these have relaxed their opposition. It's a fact that at the time when the picture was most bitterly opposed by churches it was presenting the impeccable dramas of one Bernhardt, and even when these realistic plays ignore religion and conventional morality you hardly hear a peep from the pulpit.

"The Big Chance," I am informed is an exceedingly powerful drama and points a moral. If you take heed to the experiences of the couple in the play you will avoid many pitfalls. On the other hand if you are looking for pitfalls you may find a few you didn't know about.

No Fig Leaves in This

Adams and Eva sounds from its title as though it were another problem play, or else a scantily garbed musical comedy. Miss Romaine Gulesepi di Pesa who blows the trumpet for the Park Square Theatre assures me that it is neither.

"It has nothing to do with the Garden of Eden, the Fall of Man and Woman. The heroine is Eva, not Eve. Mr. Comstock holds the story of the play up his sleeve, but I do know that it deals with discord in the family of a man of great wealth. We don't know the author, but Guy Bolton and George Middleton, wrote "Polly With a Past." The play had its premier in Detroit, February 17, and it comes to Boston before New York gets a squint at it.

Ever Verdant Barrie

The double bill which George Arliss is giving at the Hollis very properly ends with Barrie's one-act play, "The Well Remembered Voice." This tense and uncanny little drama would certainly never do as a curtain raiser to a comedy.

The verdancy and sparkling freshness of the imagination of J. M. Barrie has supplied much of the originality and picturesqueness of the English-speaking stage during the last twenty years. No other dramatist could conceive of such subjects as occur to Barrie, and if any other could he would be unable to dramatize them.

Just think of the fantasticness of "Peter Pan," "The Legend of Leonora," "The Admirable Crichton," "A Kiss for Cinderella" and "What Every Woman Knows." Every one of them would have been rejected as an impossible theme by dramatic school masters. Think how they differ from one another in construction, style, dialogue and character. To have done a certain kind of thing once seems sufficient reason to Barrie never to do that thing again.

Recently he has been writing one act plays. The horrors of war have saddened the cheerfulness of Barrie, but not completely quenched it. Such pathetic little plays as "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals" had plenty of laughter amid its tears.

And in "The Well Remembered Voice," how Barrie-like it is to have the ghost of a slaughtered soldier return not as a disembodied voice, but a merely boyish voice, not in the least sepulchral, a voice which preaches "chucking up" and talks of immorality in the language of a college freshman. To my mind Mr. Arliss' characterization of the sweet and crushed-souled old father whose son's voice restored to cheerfulness, one of his most splendid achievements.

How Hodge Began

William Hodge, who is unquestionably one of the most popular stars of the American stage today, attained his stellar rank only after a hard and rigorous apprenticeship as an actor. Mr. Hodge is youthful looking. Doubtless he never spoke harshly in his life, and never moved quickly. He is an antidote for the nervous restlessness of the age—one of the reasons people like him so well on the stage.

In his early "teens" he decided to become an actor. He got no encouragement in Albion, N. Y., his native town, so he joined a company playing in Pennsylvania towns at 10 and 15 cents. He tells that he was cast for old men, young men, dashing blades, and danced and sang.

"Once my brother came to see me. 'A disgrace to the family' was the way he put it. 'You don't look like an actor, Billy, and you don't act like one—so come back home.' But I didn't go. One day when our show divided its profits I received $28. With this I bought a ticket for New York, and without ceremony presented myself to James A. Herne, who was staging 'Sag Harbor.' Herne seemed to like my drawl and said he had a part for me. I began rehearsals. When he offered no advice, after I had been rehearsing for several weeks, I spoke to him about it. 'Because you are perfect in the part,' replied Herne. 'Don't try to be an actor and you'll be one. I want you to play that part just the way you are playing it, and if you do you'll make a hit.'"

And in this part Mr. Hodge succeeded, and he has been succeeding ever since. After "Sag Harbor," he appeared in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," doing the part of Mr. Stubbins. Then came "The Man From Home," in which he starred for several seasons, entrenching himself in the hearts of American audiences. He says:

"I believe that the object of the stage, so far as my endeavor is to provide a clean entertainment, with a laugh slipped in occasionally, and perhaps a lesson."

Cami Out of a Church Choir

The average New York chorus girl is so familiar in musical comedy whose amatory advances are so repulsive to the men in the cast and the audience as a comedy to which I like, but than I do many others, but I can't deny that the public likes such roles, and that Alice Hill's "Oh, You Beautiful Doll" does one of the best performances of this sort I ever saw. Miss Hill is the most staggering example individual if you see her in street dress before she begins to do things to her part.

Miss Hill came from Rochester. She began her public career as a church choir singer, and then secured an engagement in a stock company. She has learned and played 168 roles, beginning with a Biblical part in a piece called "The Holy City," which wasn't produced yesterday or even the day before. As Ella in "Take It From Me," she plays an elderly stenographer who purloins a fat bookmaker through three acts.

Interesting Customs

It is interesting to observe that while the Copley Players are reviving Arthur Wing Pinero's "The Magistrate" in Boston, a musical version of the play is now running in New York under the garish title of "Good Morning, Judge."

When a playwright becomes famous in England they make a knight out of him and call him Sir Arthur, etc. When a playwright becomes famous in America, they dig up his plays and turn them into musical comedies.

Burning Its Bridges

Probably the best proof of the success of the stock company at the Castle Square is the removal of the big picture booth which loomed in the rear of the orchestra like a minister sentry of the movies. Taking it away means that the Arlington Theatre as it is now potpri will remain a dramatic house.

One Less Gamekeeper

If Miss Florence Enright of William Collier's company in "Nothing But Lies," now playing at the Wilbur, never creates another character on the stage, she is entitled to credit for giving the quietus to the slangy gum-chewing stenographer; you know her kind, for there have been many of her in recent years.

In "Nothing But Lies," Miss Enright plays the role of a stenographer, but she is not slangy, nor does she chew gum. It is altogether a new "strenog" type, a sort of a female simpleton, who is led into trouble by the bond man, with whom she falls in love. If she were the ordinary slangy stage typist, she would not be nearly as effective. The going of the slangy typist is directly due to William Collier. It was he who suggested it to Miss Enright—that she try to act like a real stenographer, minus the slang and the gum. The result has been a really new characterization. Miss Enright, by the way, has only been on the stage for three years. She is a product of the Washington Square Players. It was there she got her first chance and where she made good as one of its chief players. It was her work with the Washington Square Players that was really responsible for the present engagement in the comedy at the Wilbur. William Collier saw her act and gave her the opportunity to appear in the Collier success.

They Pray for Rain

The return of Willie Collier and Hapley Holmes brings back two members of an informal organization known as 'the Muddy Day" club. Another member, Townsend Walsh, is already in town. Meetings occur in the Georgian whenever the walking is bad.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

Mary Nash is the only feminine star in Boston this week. She comes in a thrilling, humorous play, "The Big Chance," about which many favorable things have been said and written. The story of "The Big Chance" might be said to be the romance of one girl loved by four men. Her name is Mary Delano. She is a former New Bedford factory hand who is in love with Charlie Hinkson, the scapegrace son of the factory owner. Mary loves this man devotedly, but, refuses to marry him for fear people will say she married for his money. So they go to New York and live together in a well-furnished apartment where she is soon thrown into the society of a circle of good for nothings.

The outbreak of the war gives Mary her big chance, as well as giving the big chance to her admirers. She forces them into enlisting with a plea that would drive even a coward to the recruiting office, and she herself becomes a nurse.

Miss Nash will be supported by a splendid company, including William J. Kelly, William E. Meehan, Annie Mack Berlein, Ben Hendricks, Ramsey Wallace, Harry Nobert, Katherine Harris Barrymore and others.

PARK SQUARE THEATRE

"Adam and Eva," a new comedy by Guy Bolton and George Middleton, authors of "Polly with a Past," will be presented at Selwyn's Park Square Theatre on next Monday night, March 17. Boston is to have the privilege of seeing this new play before it is shown in New York.

"Adam and Eva" is presented by P. Ray Comstock, which is sufficient guarantee of its cleanliness. It abounds in wit and humor and has quite the necessary love story. Mr. Comstock in association with others has given theatregoers such splendid plays as "Chu Chin Chow," "Experience" and "The Wanderer," and the delightful Princess Theatre musical comedies.

It is seldom that a cast of such excellent and notable players is assembled in a single organization. It includes Ruth Shepley, Otto Kruger, Courtenay Foote, Ferdinand Gottschalk, William B. Mack, Roberta Arnold, Reginald Mason, Adelaide Prince, Jean Shelby and John Flood.

COPLEY THEATRE

"The Magistrate," which the Henry Jewett Players are to give at the Copley Repertory Theatre during the coming week, is one of the most famous farces of recent years. Its author is Sir Arthur Pinero.

As one of the most memorable of Augustin Daly's productions, "The Magistrate," with Ada Rehan in its leading feminine character, will be best remembered. It has not been acted in Boston for some time, and during the interval a new generation has grown up that will increase the numbers of those who will want to see this revival.

With his usual dexterity Pinero weaves an intricate plot that never descends to the level of knock-about farce. Its theme is well worth the three acts of its telling.

ARLINGTON THEATRE

"A Butterfly on the Wheel," which is to be given by the Arlington Theatre Stock Company during the coming week, is a romantic drama that tells an enthrallingly interesting story, and that contains many strongly emotional scenes. It has been the talk of two continents, and has been received with acclaim by the theatregoers of New York, London and many other play-going centres.

The dramatic interest in "A Butterfly on the Wheel" is due largely to the effectiveness of a trial scene. Like "On Trial" and "Madame X," two incidents leading up to that scene give the keynote to the drama.

GAYETY THEATRE

Next week at the Gayety Theatre there will appear Jacobs and Jermon's "Big Burlesque Review," with Harry K. Morton and Zella Russell, Harry K. Morton and Zella Russell, supported by a capable cast of burlesque stars, including a large chorus of Broadway show girls, display numerous types and styles of gowns, dresses and other sensational costumes and effects. Harry K. Morton —the comedian needs no introduction to the fans of this kind of amusement—is a comedian of legitimate and original methods, and many new and novel comedy situations are to be seen in this new scintillating revive. There has been no attempt to furnish a deep laid plot, but merely a succession of lively and amusing features.

KEITH'S THEATRE

Frank Dobson and company is coming to Keith's with the headline act the coming week. It is one of the best musical comedy tabloids written this season and has been a big hit from the start. The name of the act is "The Sirens" and it is a merry melange of comedy, music and songs.

The other acts include Bobbe and Nelson in a conception of songs, Josie Heather is the winsome English comedienne, Ben Bernie is a syncopated funster in various forms of jazz, Le Maire and Hayes company are the Americus Aces of Spades, Raymond and Wilbert offer "On the Golf Links," the Daring Sisters in European novelties, Tracy and McBride in speedy steppers, and Larry Reilly will offer "The Minstrel of Kerry."

ORPHEUM THEATRE

An all-star bill of vaudeville and first-run photoplay features will be offered for the first half of the week at Loew's Orpheum Theatre. Prominent on the bill are Brady and Mahoney in their submarine satire, "The Cruise of the Doughnut," and the one-act farce by Franklyn Ardell, "Their Wedding Day," which will be played by a competent company. Others on the bill will be Marston and Manley in their skit, "See What I Mean"; Martin and Claire in unique and spectacular dance exhibitions.

COMING

At the Plymouth Theatre, following the engagement of William Hodge, George Broadhurst on Monday, March 24, will bring to that playhouse the successful farce "She Walked in Her Sleep." After its prosperous season at the Plymouth in New York, Margaret Mayo is having a hand in the making of "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath," for it is the author of this new farce that tickled the risibilities of New York audiences for so long a time.

The excellent company which employs the services of Mabel Irving, Helena Lee, Erin Remsober, Williams, Lelia Frost, Courtenay Eva Williams, Lelia Frost, Marjorie Davis, Robert Ober, Arthur Aylesworth, Walter Walker, Arthur Delord and Joseph Crehan immediately recommends itself as a fine assemblage of real farceurs.

Word comes from Elliott, Comstock and Gest, leading musical comedy producers, that they will send their newest success, "Oh, Look!" to the Shubert Theatre for a limited engagement beginning March 31, with the famous Dolly Sisters, the inimitable Harry Fox and the entire original cast, chorus and production.

TREMONT TEMPLE

"The Heart of Humanity" is proving all that its sponsors have claimed for it and even more in the manner in which it has gripped Boston lovers of motion pictures. It begins the second week at Tremont Temple firmly established in favor as one of the most impressive photoplays ever shown here. It is a remarkable cinema production and discriminating patrons have been quick to recognize it as such. Love forms the central theme of the photoplay and, as the title implies, it is the story of all the living, breathing world. It treats of the love that lives in the mother heart; of the love that dwells in the hearts of all sweethearts; of the love that exists in the hearts of all husbands and wives. It is the story of the grand passion which prompts humanity to do and dare for what is good and right, even to the extent of sacrificing life itself. Dorothy Phillips in the leading role gives an intelligent interpretation, and the supporting company is in every member excellent, fittingly matching the quality of the production.

SAILING TO YARMOUTH

With the resumption of the passenger, as well as the freight traffic on the Yarmouth line, nearly a fortnight ago, announcement is now made that the sailing time from Central Wharf is advanced from 1 o'clock to 2 o'clock through the schedule otherwise remaining the same.

McISAAC says that

GEORGE ARLISS, in a double bill, "The Mollusc" and Barrie's "Well Remembered Voice," gives two characterizations that are most attractive. Excellent entertainment. Hollis.

WILLIAM COLLIER, in "Nothing but Lies," has a side-splitting farce and admirable support, including Rapley Holmes and Frank Munros. Wilbur.

LOU TELLEGEN, in "Blind Youth," begins his second and last week. An unusual sort of melodrama of artistic life in Paris and New York. Tremont.

WILLIAM HODGE, in "A Cure for Curables," presents an amusing comedy about a lot of folks in a sanitarium and how a young doctor cured 'em all by putting them to work. Plymouth.

FRED STONE, in "Jack o' Lantern," continues his wonderful run. Clean, high-class entertainment, which pleases the public immensely. Colonial.

GLOBE THEATRE

A change of policy will be inaugurated at Loew's Globe Theatre which involves a semi-weekly change of all-photoplay bills, superseding that which hitherto has prevailed of programs lasting the full week. This does not mean a change of quality, but is aimed to allow the theatre's patrons to attend twice weekly. The bill for the first half will include Norma Talmadge in "The Probation Wife," the story of which details the career of a young society woman whose husband's ideas of the marriage bond are loose, but the sound sense of the woman prevails and impresses him rightly. The other photoplay will show Montagu Love in "The Hand Invisible." The bill for the last half will show Enid Bennett in "Partners Three," and Grace Valentine in "The Unchastened Woman."

PEABODY PLAYHOUSE

Music lovers of Boston will have an opportunity this evening to hear Madam Marie Conde, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York, who will sing at the Peabody Play House, No. 357 Charles street. The players based upon real incidents of the late war are the work of Mr. Percival Wilde, and one of them, "Fumes," has a remarkable setting arranged by the artist, Mr. Oliver Hamlin.

NEW WALDORF THEATRE

Proscenium arch of New Waldorf Theatre on Tremont street, near Berkeley street. This new picture house opens tomorrow.

A notable addition to Boston's already large list of theatres will be made when there is opened to the public tomorrow night the New Waldorf Theatre which is situated on the site of the old Cyclorama building on Tremont street, near Berkeley. The New Waldorf is owned and operated by the Waldorf Theatres Corporation, the members of which are connected with the famous Waldorf restaurants.

Possessing one of the largest auditoriums in this part of the country, the house will seat comfortably 2,500 people.

Special arrangements for exit in case of sudden need are met with over sixty exit doors which will allow the big house to be emptied in less than three minutes.

The music will be played by the full Waldorf orchestra under the direction of Flora G. Schrieder, formerly leader at the Codman Square Theatre.

The offerings for the first half will include Willaing and Jordan, popular variety entertainers, who specialize in songs and piano numbers; Maurice Samuels and Company in the new edition of the one-act comedy, "A Day at Ellis Island"; the Curzon Sisters in their original flying butterflies aerial novelty; Ben Smith, discourses of comedy in blackface; and Forrest and Church, singers and comedians. On the screen there will be shown the latest news pictures, a comedy, and the photoplay, "Ruling Passions," picturing Julia Dean and Edwin Arden. For the last Dean and Edwin Arden.

DORT

Quality Goes Clear Through

TOURING CAR
$925

It is true that the Dort is more than ordinarily economical in use of gasoline and oil.

Its tire mileage, likewise, is visibly higher than is usual.

The sum of your savings in these three points will run up to an appreciable amount in the course of a season.

But you will find the most noteworthy economy of the Dort in such items as overhauling, tuning up, and replacements.

It requires a minimum amount of service-attention to keep it in fit condition and continuous service.

Two factors are chiefly responsible for this. They typify the Dort ideal in manufacture.

One is the fine skill and painstaking precision which characterizes every step in the process of production.

The other is the extreme simplicity and accessibility of Dort construction.

The first provides you with a car that is certain to travel smoothly, ably, quickly and reliably for a long time.

The second makes it possible for you yourself—without expert and expensive assistance—to adjust, tune up, or "dope" up any part when that should become desirable.

Your appreciation of the Dort will grow with every mile you drive it and every month you own it.

SEVENTEENTH AUTO SHOW SURPASSES ALL OTHERS

Wondrous Scenic Effects Have Transformed Mechanics Building Into a Bower of Beauty—New England's War Heroes Remembered.

By C. F. DONNOCKER, Automobile Editor.

With the opening of the doors of the Mechanics Building today on the beautiful decorative scheme of the Seventeenth Annual Automobile Show of the Boston Motor Vehicle Dealers' Association, the public realizes that while the shadows of the war clouds of Europe are still with us, the world is in reality starting off again on its ceaseless round of commercial activity, and the automobile industry is coming into its own, after more than a year of apparent stagnation as far as output for home consumption was concerned.

And just as the great American army emerged from its trial by shot and shell a better and stronger fighting machine, absolutely invincible, so the motor car has emerged from its trial of war a better, stronger and more useful piece of mechanism and far more appreciated because of the wonderful work it did in winning this World War.

While Boston has had many wonderful exhibitions of automobiles, it is apparent that this show is the greatest, and in comparison with the number of exhibits displayed at either New York or Chicago and the beauty of the decorations it is far and away ahead of all.

The motif of the decorations is fitting—victory, peace and prosperity, and the thousands of vari-colored lights bursting forth from the mammoth electoliers give a radiance and warmth of color unsurpassed in the history of similar exhibitions held in the famous old building.

And the decorator has not forgotten the homage due the Yankee Division and the Yankee sailors who went forth to fight the battles that permit democracy to still reign supreme throughout the world.

At the very entrance to the promenades hang huge bronze escutcheons bearing the records of these noble men and they are not forgotten throughout the whole building, for the aisles have all been named after New England's war heroes.

ALL AISLES NAMED AFTER WAR HEROES.

The main aisle is called Avenue Edwards, after the commander of the Yankee Division. Another bears the name of Rear Admiral Spencer Woods, in command of the Northeast Naval District; another is Avenue Logan, in honor of the gallant commander of the 101st Infantry, the Boston regiment that was in the thick of the fighting at all times. Practically every commander of a Massachusetts regiment has an aisle named in his honor.

Standards of national colors and brilliant illumination greet the visitor as he enters Exhibition Hall. Here our co-operation with our allies is typified by over a hundred scenic tablets, the Stars and Stripes blending with the flags of other nations, surrounded by a golden sunburst, covering every one of the huge bracket frames which are concealed by borders of electric lamps.

Avenue Edwards, the main aisle, presents the greatest novelty in decorative effects ever devised for the building. Exquisitely modeled figures typifying the rewards of victory border the promenade on marble pedestals, over whom the flag of our nation hangs in graceful folds. The most original effect, however, is shown in the electric devices lighting the promenade—Composed of crystals and pendant silk ribbons in red, white and blue—these being fringed with glass drops. Another innovation is the reflectors lighting the exhibits from concealed lamps.

BEAUTIFULLY DECORATED.

The vast area of wall space its treated in panels of red and old gold draperies—the upper portion, a diamond fret-work having a small gilded eagle in the centre from which a sunburst in gold hangs by a black supporting rod, the gilded pendant having as a centre a bas-relief American shield enameled in colors. Smilax covers all of the windows.

In direct contrast to former years, the designer has featured large special electroliers instead of several of varying sizes. In the light well, under a canopy of many hues in silken fabrics, is suspended an electrolier nearly thirty feet in diameter, its geometrical design scintillating with lamps of all hues and intensity. Bursting out to the confines of the four walls of the surrounding balcony are hundreds of streamers of lights, an effect startling in its beauty and brilliancy. Panels conceal the front faces of the balcony, models of the scene painters art.

GRAND HALL IS BEAUTIFUL.

Grand Hall, the mecca of those searching for an art setting for the magnificent cars now exhibited for 1919, is no disappointment for those who have gazed and wondered at the marvelous designs of former years. The Columns of Honor bordering the centre aisle to the stage, are rendered in Nubian marble and dull gold—nearly twenty-five feet high, surmounted by gilded statuesque eagles.

Above them all is the largest, most elaborate and strikingly beautiful electrolier ever produced for any auto show in the world. The outside dimensions of the body itself is about twenty-five feet while the spread of the illuminating arms radiating from it reaches the enormous size of nearly eighty feet. The streamers reach the balconies on all sides of the hall.

The six-cylinder motor is the predominating type this year. The four-cylinder type will be found in many of the medium-priced cars. There are about the usual number of eights and twelves.

The show opens every morning at 10 o'clock and will close each evening at 10:30 o'clock.

EFFECT OF GREAT WORLD WAR ON AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY

Interesting Figures Which Show Just How Third Largest Industry Was Affected

By ALFRED REEVES,
General Manager National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

Because of its importance in what has been termed a "War of Motors"—under the sea, on land and in the air—the automobile industry has suffered substantially in the making of its normal product. In some instances passenger car makers were almost 100 per cent. on war materials when the armistice was signed, and have had some difficulty in getting back to a peace basis. Contracts were taken not alone for cars and trucks, but for guns, mine anchors, depth-bombs, helmets, field kitchens, airplane motors, tanks, tractors, shells and similar material which could be made by the modern equipment of the motor car plants.

Passenger car production was more than 800,000 cars short of 1917, being only 53 per cent. of that year, while truck production increased from 128,157 to 227,251, or 76 per cent.

Automobile manufacturers are now returning to normal production, which will take some months' time, and it may be that this year's production may not even reach the 1917 mark. There are now almost 6,000,000 motor vehicles registered in the United States, with heavy replacement demands during 1919.

The following revised figures from War Industries Board and other sources, are interesting in showing the war's effect on automobile making, the third largest manufacturing industry in this country:

LEADING AUTOMOBILE DEALERS OF BOSTON DISCUSS THE TREND OF GREAT INDUSTRY

By J. L. SNOW,
Local Peerless Distributer.

Investigations by the Peerless Motor Car Company have disclosed that 98 per cent. of the open type cars on the highways today are driven with tops up regardless of the season and current weather conditions.

As a result Peerless engineers forecast an ever increasing demand for the enclosed car, which embodies the characteristics of the touring and roadster models—light weight, quickly adjustable windows which will let in "all outdoors" and ease of entrance and exit.

The recently conducted investigations involved the checking of cars of all makes as they passed through the streets of cities and along the principal highways. Even in the Berkshire Hills, a mecca for tourists, it was found that the open type cars were driven with tops up no matter what the temperature or prevailing weather.

The new Peerless enclosed models motors embody all those characteristics which are found in the touring models and in addition assure year-round luxury.

The perfection of metals, light in weight but durable in construction, the work of the Peerless metallurgists—and the efficient methods of Peerless engineers have combined to make these cars surprisingly light.

The Peerless coach builders have seen to it that a maximum amount of comfort and ease can enter by making the windows and doors of unusual width. The low-hung frame and wide-opening doors make the enclosed car even more easy to enter than the open models.

The formal Peerless lines and completeness of appointment have made it possible for the Peerless Motor Car Company to realize the manufacturing cost of these particular types to a basis which more closely approaches the manufacturing cost of its open models. In view of this fact and the more generally recognized advantages of the enclosed car, the Peerless organization predicts a still greater demand for the all season types.

By J. H. MacALMAN,
President of Boston Automobile Dealers' Association, Inc.

With their usual optimism, the automobile manufacturers view present business conditions throughout the country and the civilized world as only temporary and look ahead to further activity in prosperity in industry and commerce in the United States and in those countries not adversely affected by the war in Europe.

This feeling is justified on the ground that the world stock of foods, clothing, textiles, and all sorts of manufactured articles and various raw materials are low and must be replenished, and building and highway construction have been largely suspended for several years and must be resumed; that railroads need rehabilitation; that the ship building program will be continued, and that farm production must go on indefinitely at an enormously stimulated rate.

All such activities will call for increased and more efficient transportation which means more general use of passenger cars and trucks. Normally, the automobile trade is optimistic; it never would have grown to its present magnitude if manufacturers and dealers had not been possessed of confidence in the growth and prosperity of the United States.

The automobile industry was the first to recover its equilibrium after the financial panic in 1907, and at the present time every automobile factory is working at high speed to turn out its greatest production of cars. They believe there is great prosperity ahead.

"Courtesy in the motor car business, just as in every other business or social activity is of paramount importance," said W. A. Gleason of the Utterback-Gleason Company, distributers for Dort cars, and dealers in various angles of the retail sale of automobiles.

"In fact I believe we do not put enough emphasis upon the courtesy to which every motor car buyer is entitled both before and after he makes his selection. By courtesy I do not mean cringing politeness but the attention to detail and extra effort which the dealer is in duty bound to offer to the prospect at every stage of his selection of an automobile.

"It is not enough to give the buyer the usual selling talk and to demonstrate the car for him. Buyers want more. They want facts and figures about other cars in service; they want special attention to their own problems whether of business or pleasure and these courtesies should be offered by the dealer. Today practically every motor car buyer has a reason for buying, other than that of simply getting an enjoyable plaything. He has some specific use for his car and the courtesy he should have from the salesman includes special attention to his needs and definite explanation backed by cold facts of how the car under discussion can perform.

"More than that, after the sale is made there's a courtesy in the new car in helping him operate his car to best advantage. It does not cost a cent in teaching him to keep his car, but it goes further into motoring. It should embrace the [illegible] car, the fine points of economical driving and the best methods of upkeep and general use of a automobile.

"Not that this courtesy extends into a lot of free service. That is more than the average owner expects. But what he does want is a courtesy from the dealer which will give him a feeling of confidence that the dealer is endeavoring not only to sell him an automobile, but to keep him sold so long as there is a bit of life left in that car."

By EDWARD S. JORDAN,
President Jordan Motor Car Co.

I have been asked the question many times in the past few weeks: "What are you going to do, now that the war is over?" The question is simple to answer, because it was answered long before the war came to this country.

The Jordan Motor Car Company was founded upon an idea. That idea grew and flourished and won its right to a permanent place in the Jordan scheme of things.

In the first place, the Jordan organization is built up of a group of young and able men—men who have proved their worth, and who have learned through experience the selling value of quality in a motor car. The first car sold and the last car built were inspected and tested just as carefully as the first model.

It was a part of the Jordan idea to build a single chassis of finished mechanical excellence provided with a choice of distinctive and comfortable custom style bodies to suit the taste of the buyer. Hence, the Jordan chassis is built of standard units of good reputation and unquestioned superiority. They are purchased in an intelligent way from only reliable concerns. By adopting standard units we have recognized the best ideas of others, thus saving the time and expense of working out problems and others have solved.

The men who make the Jordan car happily share the profits of its success their enthusiastic pride in their product is reflected in a car of careful workmanship.

It is also an important part of the Jordan idea to furnish a completely equipped car. While the chassis includes all the finest mechanical units the body and its equipment are complete to the last luxurious detail. And these details are advertised truthfully, without sensational claims of extraordinary features.

We have designed and built and dressed and cultivated and trained the Jordan car to become the associate of the man whose tastes are a little more refined, whose ideas of neatness in appearance of refinement in conduct in his general attitude toward life, expresses the better things. Such a man wants to feel right in the eyes of his neighbors, so he buys a fine, high grade, good quality car. That is good taste.

All these things have spelled success to the Jordan idea. So why shouldn't we continue them? That is exactly what we intend to do on a bigger scale than ever.

As to the immediate future, I believe there is a special field for the high-grade motor car in the new class of buyers coming out of the conflict over there. These men will bring back with their new life, renewed energy and a desire for better things than they knew when they left the first thing they will want when they get back is luxury. They have missed the comforts of home in the trenches and camps of France. They will want to get into a deep, luxurious, powerful motor car and drive to the end of the road. These men have given their best for us and we should not stint them.

MANY PURCHASES MADE AT AUTO SHOW

Following its advertised custom, the Saxon Motor Car Corporation does not announce new models yearly but adds refinements from time to time throughout the year.

The Beaver Brown roadster incorporates, besides a new color, several important improvements added simultaneously, and is, therefore, attracting added attention at the show.

The Saxon exhibit at the show boasts of what seems to be a special roadster, but which is in reality a standard car. It is a Saxon "Six" four-passenger roadster in a beautiful new color called beaver brown.

The standard roadster color for the past year has been blue. The beaver brown is being shown for the first time at the show. Harmonizing with the brown of the body is the white of the wire wheels.

The rear curtain is newly equipped with bevel plate glass window carried in a nickel frame. The gas tank is moved from the cowl to the rear, and Stewart vacuum feed is used. The genuine leather upholstery which has been a most popular feature of all Saxon 1918 models is being continued.

CLASSY ROADSTERS IN SAXON EXHIBIT

"There has been one feature of this year's motor car shows that I believe is significant of the 1919 season," says Harry S. Daniels, advertising manager of the Dort Motor Car Company.

"That is the way in which buyers are making show time the occasion for buying a car. I have attended a good many exhibits and have seen the usual throng of curious spectators gathered about cut-out chassis and other display novelties. I have heard their questions and seen the demonstrators and salesmen talk to prospects. And you could always tell that the show-goers weren't interested as buyers. All they wanted was information.

"This year it has been universally different. You see little groups about the booths—a salesman and a man and wife. You can tell at a glance that they are not only interested in the car, but in buying it. The salesman's actions show it, and the results show it. I venture to guess that the motor car shows of this year have seen more retail sales actually made on the floor of the exhibits than any previous ones.

Get Ready, Fans, for Stories from Rival Training Camps

BASEBALL is in the arena prepared for the 1919 campaign. The big league clubs are already on their way to the training camps in the South.

Nick Flatley, Baseball Editor of the American, is with the vanguard of the Braves party, which is now en route to Columbus, Ga. Mr. Flatley will tell in his own graphic and breezy way the daily doings in the Braves' camp. Don't fail to read his unique baseball gossip.

Jack Conway, sporting authority of many years' standing, will accompany the Red Sox to Tampa, Fla. Mr. Conway has entertained thousands of American readers with his clever stories from previous Spring training camps. Don't miss his comprehensive reports of the happenings in the camp of the world's champions.

TWO AND THREE PUTTING THE NEXT ONE OVER "WITH "BUGS" BAER.

WRESTLING has had more zones than the Rural Free Delivery. Now Jack Curley is ironing out the wrinkles in the Alps of sports and is putting the works on the level. It's a tough assignment—like picking up quicksilver with millions on.

There has been so many predigested wrestling bouts pulled on the fans that all the buns wore blinders on their one good eye whenever they heard a mat champ was in the offing. Putting up a wrestling sign on an arena was just like advertising the measles.

During the flu epidemic this Winter when everybody in California was forced to wear masks, no Golden Gater would go to another San Francisco bullyy because he was afraid he might be the Masked Marvel.

The wrestlers were the "Welcome" off the grappling mat. But now Jack has copped a new mat piece and chirps that he is going to levelize the industry. Jacks new skirmish cry is this: "No flop, no charge." If one big wellesk of muscles doesn't push the other meat pyramid over on his vertebrae, th... ... rub their velvet back. What could be sweeter?

No ... ... If ... don't any flop, you get your smackers back. ... ...

This Day in History—March 15, 1919

THIS is the anniversary of the birth in 1767 of Andrew Jackson, conqueror of the British at New Orleans and twice President. He was known as "Old Hickory" and his life story reads like a romance. He fought many duels and was one of the inspiring figures of his day.

When a Girl Marries

A New Serial of Young Wedded Life

Anne Braves the Lion and Secures a New Lease of Life for Carlotta Sturges in Return for That Loud Young Lady's Disinterested Work in the Canteen

By Ann Lisle

(Copyright, 1919, by the King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

JIM'S answer was rough and ready. "A young man who can take care of himself doesn't come strolling home at ten o'clock at night. You haven't yet designed to be, me much. You were."

Wearily I realized that now I was not going to ask whose number Jim had called after he failed to get me at the canteen. Suddenly all my jealousy seemed to drop all to my indifference, and I didn't even care. I was tired, miserable and disappointed. And I felt for the first time since our marriage a sensation of separateness from Jim. Our interests were no longer the same. I couldn't tell him of my experience with Carlotta Sturges—of my new desire to help that girl, who was a friend of his sister Virginia's husband.

I got half way home, and then I realized that I'd forgotten something. I replied to his question, and the insistent gaze with which he waited for me to speak. And I got off the car and walked back. The canteen was closed. Then I came home.

"Well, of all the—" Jim began. Then you were tired and pressed because I was not willing to grant you—and you took your car and left Tom!" cried Jim, with a great relief.

Have I that was. I felt as if I were very tired indeed. What would you think if I stayed out here tonight?" I asked.

CHAPTER XCIII.

WHEN I awoke in the morning on the couch in the living room I had a temporary feeling of unreality. I began groping round in my mind and then all the events of the evening before came trooping back—my return to the canteen to attempt to put Carlotta Sturges at least foot forward for her—my ugly encounter with Tom Mason—Jim's refusal to face the facts regarding that experience.

So that's my husband," I said to myself grimly. The man who vowed to love and cherish me. How pretty he protects me! How speedily he saves me from insult! How thankful I must be sneering at Jim—at me.

I felt my self sliding into a hard, bitter mood. I have needed to contract into a tight little mass that matched them. I hadn't stopped loving Jim. My love seemed to deepen rather than put fall me—he had failed love like.

But when we met at breakfast Jim smiled as if nothing had happened. A quarrel might have cleared the air. Severe acceptance of things left a chasm between us. I wonder if it can ever be bridged?

"Remember, Anne," said Jim just as we were departing for Anthony Nemo's office, "that the night of Virginia's dinner in her new home. You want to be sure to have yourself a manicure, waves or a massage or any other little thing you want pretty soon."

Jim Leaves a Bill

As he spoke I noticed on the floor by the door an overcoat on the floor. I would be tossed something on the table and I thought I recognized it as the room and examined the door.

I crossed to the table and glanced at it had up what he had left there. It was a ten dollar bill.

Taking the bill between my thumb and forefinger I carried it to the bedroom and deposited it in the box where Jim keeps his studs and links. Then I examined myself in his shaving mirror. It showed me a haggard and worn face.

Stocks Recede in Active New York Market

HIGHEST RECORD PRICES FOR A FEW ISSUES

Specialties Feature Trading; U. S. Steel Narrow, Rails and Coppers Dull

By W. H. ROSS.
Financial Editor.

Stocks ruled weak in New York today, most issues failing in sympathy with the reaction that began soon after the exchange opened. As has been the case all the week, the trading features were specialties, and some of them sold this morning at the highest prices they have ever brought. Coppers were inconspicuous and there was comparatively little business railway shares. U. S. Steel fluctuated within a point, closing ½ net at 95¾. Issues to sell at their record highest in New York included U. S. Rubber, American Agricultural, Chemical and American International Corporation, also included in Boston Century Steel. Among those to sell at their 1919 highest on the New exchange were Alaska Gold, Atlantic Gulf, Central Leather and General Motors. The market was active.

Transactions today totalled 549,700 shares; bond sales amounted to $5,761,000. Total sales of specialties were 6,259,000 shares; bonds, $57,230,000.

CLOSING LOSSES AND GAINS.

Among losses at the close were Mexican Petroleum 1¼ at 184¾; International Alcohol ¾ at 34¾; Southern Pacific ¼ at 102; Reading ¾ at 83⅝; Studebaker ¾ at 64¾; Corn Products ¼ at 80¾; Central Leather ¼ at 78⅜; Baldwin ¾ at 87; Atlantic Gulf 2 at 114¾; American Smelting ¾ at 86¾; Anaconda ¾ at 80¼; Utah Copper ¾ at 86⅝, and St. Paul ¾ at 38½.

Gains included U. S. Rubber, ½ at 86; Studebaker, ½ at 65⅜; Sinclair Oil, 2¼ at 43¾; Marine preferred, ¾ at 119¾; American International Corporation, 3 at 71¾; Agricultural Chemical, 4 at 107¾; International Harvester, 2⅛ at 124⅜, and California Packing, 1¾ at 90¾.

In Boston dealings included Swift, 4 at 127; United Fruit, 1¾ at 174; Osceola, 1¼ at 44⅝; Mohawk, 1⅜ at 57; Ahmeek, ¾ at 66, and American Woolen preferred, ¾ at 100¾.

Among gains here were Massachusetts Electric preferred, ¾ at 7; United Shoe, ¾ at 49; New Haven, ¾ at 32; Copper Range, ¾ at 39¾; Century Steel, ¾ at 15¾; Agricultural Chemical, 1½ at 107¾; Utah Metals, 1¾ at 11¾, and Calumet & Hecla, 45 at 395.

FIRM TONE AT OPENING.

The market tone was firm at the opening and as a rule active issues advanced. They were almost all specialties, however. Old time standard issues were quiet. Rails and coppers got little attention. Central Leather and Atlantic Gulf opened at their highest for the year and U. S. Rubber sold at a new high record price on the second transaction. Industrial Alcohol advanced nearly three points on its first sale. Crucible was two strong issues. U. S. Steel was heavily traded in, but moved within quite a narrow price range. There was less demand for stocks when the market began than at previous openings in the week, and offerings increased at once. Most issues reacted and within half an hour gains were obliterated or greatly reduced in most instances. Trading was of magnitude.

TRADERS NOT SO BULLISH.

While there was as much difference of opinion as is usually found in trading circles as to the probable market trend, sentiment among professional operators seemed to be less bullish. At the end of the question is whether the upward movement has culminated in Boston, but stocks like U. S. Steel and leading railway and copper issues have responded very slightly to the gains. There are good reasons for their lagging. Wall Street is viewing the stock market more conservatively, and is said to be at this moment more inclined to sell than to buy. Although much has been accomplished in readjusting trade and industry to a peace basis, it is argued that there are still points in the road ahead and that it may be possible to discount coming prosperity too quickly. In financial circles buying of stocks by the public is regarded with astonishment. Nothing on such a scale was expected and it has made the market remarkably responsive to buying for days. There has been a great significance in the number of small lots handled.

Billions Lost by France

Losses incurred by France during the war in its textile industries alone are estimated by President Edwin F. Greene of Lockwood, Greene & Co., to total $12,000,000,000. Thirty per cent. of its cotton and worsted industry has been destroyed, while 50 per cent. of its flax industry has been wiped out.

U. S. Rubber Earnings

Wall Street expects that when the annual report of the United States Rubber Company is made public shareholders in about a week it will show approximately $23 a share earned on common stock last year, after liberal charges.

January Rail Earnings

For January, according to reports to the Interstate Commerce Commission, the total operating income of 181 railroads for January increased $111,457,192, while net operating income increased $22,880,812.

United Shoe Machinery Corporation

The Directors of this Corporation have declared a quarterly dividend of 1¾% (fifty cents per share) on the Preferred capital stock, and a dividend of 5% (62½ cents per share) on the Common capital stock, both payable April 5, 1919, to stockholders of record at the close of business March 19, 1919.

FOREIGN OWNED COPPER ON MARKET

Offered Here by Small Agencies at 14½ Cents a Pound

Foreign-owned copper has been offered in this country at 14½ cents a pound, it is stated, since another source comes the report that metal has been sold recently in small lots at this figure. In both reports sellers are said to be small agencies, but that they are on hand the same can not be stated. At all events it is believed that any metal thus marketed has been small.

Large interests continue to ask 15 cents a pound, delivered, or 14¾ cents f. o. b. New York without attracting customers.

The passing of its dividend by the Calumet & Hecla Company calls attention to how grave great mining interests have become the metal situation is. While some mining companies have curtailed production 50 per cent., Calumet & Hecla is operating at present around 75 per cent. of normal.

Reports from the principal producers of the more important producers amounted to 93,545,350 pounds, a decrease of 19,145,119 pounds from January total of 112,390,465 pounds.

While mining and smelting companies are lowering their incomes curtailed by the passing or reduction of dividends the wages of employees are being cut. In the Cheur d'Alene district of Idaho today the wage reduction was that tomorrow there will be a wage reduction of $1 a day per miner, the latter now getting $6.25 a day, and at the new rate must work for $4.25.

Linters consumed in same months were 8,752 bales in 1919 and 57,861 in 1918. Cotton held in consuming establishments on February 28 totalled 1,558,810 bales in 1919 and 1,899,956 in 1918, and in public storage and at compresses 4,631,581 bales in 1919 and 3,399,406 in 1918.

Imports, including 3,702 equivalent 500-pound bales in 1919 and 13,676 in 1918. Exports, including linters, amounted to 449,524 running bales in 1919 and 359,774 in 1918. Cotton spindles active during February were 33,222,893 in 1919 and 34,582,222 in 1918. Linters held in consuming establishments were 5,419,581 bales in 1919 and 5,389,406 in 1918.

Imports for eight months ended February 28 were 106 bales in 1919 and 7,480 in 1918.

IMPROVEMENT IN THE COTTON GOODS MARKET

Increased trading has marked the cotton goods market this week, prices showing firmer and more active tone. After being closed five weeks, eight Borden mills at Fall River are now operating on a three-days-a-week basis. On Monday the American Print Company is printing cloths will resume after being closed since February 5. This week's buying and inquiries have been the largest for months.

"While," it is stated, "at current prices for cotton and cloth, many varieties of the latter scarcely meet the costs of production, having mills reluctant to book ahead, the present active bidding for goods and the sustained activity and quotations of supplies in the retail trade afford a more promising prospect than since the armistice.

"MONEY COMMITTEE" NOT TO CURB SPECULATION

The activity of the stock market this week, while its fluctuations were few days, has inspired the question now that Congress has adjourned and peace is pending, if the "Money Committee" will not be called upon to act again to curb speculation. When asked his view, a New York banker said:

"It is generally believed that wide-open credit situation without a buoyant security market in times of peace will have a most disastrous effect upon government offerings than when millions loans were required and in curity prices sagging. Investors are more apt to participate in a note offering if in a rising market than they would be in a declining market."

NAZIMOVA FILM TAKEN AT NORTH SHORE LIGHT

"Out of the Fog," the big seven act photoplay in which the celebrated Russian actress Nazimova will appear for the first time in Boston at the Boston Theatre next week, was filmed at Gloucester Point Light, on the rocky shore of Cape Ann. A score of Gloucester fishermen took part in the outdoor scenes, and the scenes in and about the lighthouse in the story were made inside Gloucester Point Lighthouse, by special permission of the United States Government.

Nazimova plays a double role; first appearing as Faith Coffin, whose lover is lost at sea; and later as her daughter Dore grow to womanhood twenty years later. Nothing in Nazimova's stage career has more remarkable than the manner in which she changes her walk, her mannerisms, in fact, her whole personality, depicting the two widely different characters in "Out of the Fog." Although the play is one of the most absorbing and sensational ever filmed, but four principals appear in the main scenes, for the plot is remarkably strong and holds the interest every second.

After Griffith Laurels.

Meet Allen Holubar—one of the very few rivals to D. W. Griffith as a producer of film spectacles.

Picture critics who have seen "The Heart of Humanity," now playing at the Tremont Temple, the new multi-pictorial drama of love and war, are enthusiastic in their praise of the young director who has executed a masterpiece in what is declared to be one of the most engrossing film features yet produced.

Before directing Dorothy Phillips in this latest of the Universal luminary's pictures, Holubar was the "star of the Town," with Miss Phillips and also enacted the leading role in "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea."

Holubar is still in this latter span of the twenty-six years to be the husband of Miss Phillips.

'Hush Singing an Art.

To secure the proper local color in "Partners Three," Enid Bennett's photoplay which will be shown at the Orpheum Theatre the first half of next week, required the use of a railroad locomotive, which may not always be recognized by transcontinental tourists, the name which, however, is written large across the tender.

Naturalness is a professional virtue to which Enid Bennett owes much in pictures, and when she discovered from the scenario that she had to become a waitress in an eating house she confessed she knew nothing about jugging doughnuts and coffee to a waiting order. In order to get the proper poise as a counter girl, she arranged with the proprietor of the eating house to work one noon during an overland train's brief stop.

She donned the apron and went behind the counter among the coffee urns and dished up to all the onslaught of hungry travelers.

They came with a bang, and when the train pulled out there were two men and a woman standing on the observation platform gesticulating and muttering back at the waitress, who had spilled hot coffee on their clothes. Then she heaped them high with some of the more or less audacious comments her services had provoked.

The Dog Star.

"Pegsy" plays a part in Tom Moore's new photoplay, "A Man and His Money," such as no other dog could be found to play. She is a brindle bull and is really the property of the star, being the first acquisition since coming to California. She might have been his since puppyhood jugging from the obedience and affection the animal shows for the likable star. When he leaves for the Goldwyn Studios in the morning the dog can hardly be persuaded not to follow him, and the homecoming at night is always an orgy of welcoming barks and joy. All of which has a great deal to do with the play if you can see in the shrewd.

First of all it must be known that there are three other dogs in the story. They belong to Mrs. Johnson DeLong (Kate Lester), who provided her pets with everything calculated to amuse anyone but their doting owner. They have a nursery, playthings, separate little beds and a pink enameled bathtub, not to mention tidbits of chicken and thick cream and filtered water—and someone to look after them. This person is none other than Harry Lathrop (Tom Moore). He answers an advertisement for a dog sitting and is horrified to find that he is a candidate for the position. The reasons which must be seen in the play when it comes to the Beacon Theatre all next week to be appreciated, he accepts the job.

Home of the Bunny Hug.

What and where is the Barbary Coast? To be exact, there are two. The original was the "Coast of the High Barbary" of old pictorial days. The other and more modern, is the underworld of San Francisco. Today it is more of a name than anything else, for cleaning up days in the Golden Gate city have been frequent and the denizens thereof have mostly been scattered to the four winds of heaven.

The Barbary Coast of San Francisco is comparable only with the old Five Points in New York or Whitechapel in London. It is, or was—though it is still there as a shadow of its former self—the heart of the worst element of the city. Yet some of it was outward show and the horrified alumnae sometimes saw things which generally only there for his special benefit. Yet there were tragedies in the district, and it was never a pleasant place to find oneself in after dark.

The new Wallace Reid picture, "The Dopey Girl's Husband," will be shown for the first time in Boston all next week at the Beacon Theatre. Scenes with the Barbary Coast, 'Frisco, in a character made familiar through popular magazine stories. The role is that of a convict released on probation and prosecuting revenge upon those who have wronged him. The love of his own little son softens his heart toward his faithless wife, but before this happens there are many exciting episodes. The other photoplay will picture Tom Moore in "A Man and His Money."

Prizes were given for the two prettiest costumes and for the two best characters.

The committee in charge is: The Misses Lee, Holmes, Smith and Nessenbolts, assisted by Miss Sandquist, of the Triangle Centre and Miss Harrington of the Touraine Company.

Commissioner Roper and the Income Tax

He Works for You. You Should Work and Co-operate With Him. One Argument for the Big Man, One for the Little

Robert J. Cuddihy of the Literary Digest gave a luncheon for Daniel C. Roper, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and invited editors of newspapers and magazines to hear Mr. Roper concerning the Income Tax.

Mr. Roper's task, not easy or pleasant, but the most important in the country at this moment, is to collect for the government SIX BILLIONS OF DOLLARS from those able to pay, in order that the government may be able to pay its bills, and "settle" for the victory and armistice which were so ardently celebrated last November.

When he introduced Mr. Roper, Mr. Cuddihy made this excellent point among others in favor of cheerful, prompt income tax payment:

Suppose that before the armistice, in November, Mr. Roper had come to any citizen and had made this proposition, "Give me half your income for 1918 and I will guarantee peace within thirty days." What would the citizen have replied?

Every man at this table, every good citizen in the country, every one of those that so wildly celebrated the armistice would have replied at once, "Do what you say, give peace to the world in thirty days, end the slaughter, bring back safely our men from Europe, and you can have half my income for 1918 and for 1919 too."

Mr. Roper, the great collector for Uncle Sam, is an old fashioned type of citizen. His photograph would make a good illustration for a history of the United States in the early days. It is a thin, earnest, clean-cut, strong face, with bushy dark eyebrows, piercing eyes that seem to look into the national pocketbook, a convincing tone to make the profiteer say "I might as well pay now, and avoid trouble."

The Commissioner covered the whole wide field of Income Tax.

He began with the comforting statement that the tax was to have been eight billions and is reduced to six billions because the war has ended.

He defined three important points of the tax law as follows:

First, a proper law.

Second, an intelligent co-operative attitude by the officials that administer the law.

Third, an intelligent, co-operative attitude on the part of the public to the government.

At the end of Mr. Roper's talk, two points were uppermost in the minds of those that had heard him.

First, Mr. Roper's arguments addressed to the little man who pays on a small income. The victory that honors this country and gives peace to the world is worth ALL that it cost. And the good citizen is anxious to pay his share of the bill, be it big or little.

The American citizen is not, and does not mean to be, a deadhead. If he has the price he will pay.

Government has arranged taxes to make the bill fit the pocket to which it is sent.

It was the money that America spent in billions, the men that she equipped and sent in millions, the fierce energy and necessarily vast expense with which she went into war, that made victory come so soon. AND THAT SAVED THE LIVES OF SO MANY MEN.

The man who out of a small income sends part to his government is paying not merely government expense, but paying for the energy, the quick action that saved the lives of thousands upon thousands of earnest American young men.

That was the argument for the small taxpayer.

Second, to the big man with millions, who loves those millions, sometimes, as the poor man loves his children, Mr. Roper's argument was this:

You dread and hate Bolshevism. The best argument against Bolshevism is prompt, cheerful, honest payment of just taxes.

Bolshevism thrives, menaces the wealth of the big man and the safety of the little man, where there is justified discontent.

The antidote to discontent is evidence of the fact that laws are administered justly, and costs are apportioned justly. There is no stronger argument against Bolshevism than a system of making the man pay who is able to pay, and putting the lighter burden on the little man.

Bolshevism has grown up in the country where the little man carried the whole load and the big man went free.

Mr. Roper, who has a son in the army in Europe, asked his hearers to remember that he is not the agent of the government, but the agent OF THE PEOPLE.

The bills of the war are the people's bills, the collecting of the taxes is the PEOPLE'S work. And on the whole, if they would view it justly, American citizens as a whole need not deplore taxation, for while taxes have been high, profits, wages and earnings have been high. And the prosperous man who is apt to complain about income tax has, at the end of 1918, after paying his tax, MORE money than he had before the war, more money than he would have had if the war and its big income tax had not come.

Mr. Roper's talk should be published as a pamphlet and circulated among taxpayers. If the understanding of taxes were clear, it would make payment more prompt and more cheerful.

The tax that Mr. Roper is to collect is the largest in the history of the country, the largest that the country will ever know.

And Mr. Roper has done the work of explaining, applying, and collecting the gigantic sums of money, as one of the speakers at Mr. Cuddihy's luncheon pointed out, in such a way as to give absolutely no opportunity or pretext for criticism to any man in either party, Democrat or Republican. That is a remarkable record.

The great victory is, as Commissioner Roper said, worth fighting for, and worth paying for.

And the man who pays his tax may rest assured that Mr. Roper is doing all in his power to see to it that all his fellow-citizens pay THEIR part of the victory price. With the publicity of the assessments he would undoubtedly be able to do still more, but the main point to be emphasized is this:

HE WHO SHOUTED FOR VICTORY SHOULD BE WILLING TO PAY FOR VICTORY. The way to prove good citizenship is to pay promptly.

The country needs the money, Mr. Roper will see to it that the money is PAID. Delay is bad citizenship, it gains nothing.

PAY YOUR TAXES NOW.

I HADN'T written.
TO RESERVE me a room.
AT THE Fairmont Hotel.
WHEN I reached San Francisco.
AND WHEN I got there.
THE HOTEL was full.
AND THE clerk saw the manager.
AND THEY looked me over.
AND THE manager said.
THAT MR. D. M. Linnard
WHO OWNS the hotel.
WAS OUT of the city.
AND IF I'd be very good.
AND NOT scratch up the walls.
OR LET the tub overflow.
I COULD have his room.
AND, OF course, I took it.
AND MY typewriter's here.
AND I do my work here.
AND THE very first morning.
WHEN THE chambermaid rapped.
I WAS working away.
AND I said, "Come in."
AND SHE opened the door.
AND CALLED me Mr. Linnard.
AND WANTED to know.
SHOULD SHE make up the room.
AND I told her yes.
AND SHE came in.
AND SEEMED to be nervous.
AND I said something to her.
JUST TO ease her mind.
AND FOR the second time.
SHE CALLED me Mr. Linnard.
AND THEN informed me.
THAT SHE'D just gone to work.
ON THE day before.
AND JUST a moment ago.
SOMEONE HAD told her.
THAT I was Mr. Linnard.
AND SHE was a nice old soul.
AND WANTED to talk.
AND I let her do it.
AND SHE was very much interested.
IN WHAT I was writing.
AND I read her the one.
ABOUT THE man who was sued,
BECAUSE HE owned the horse.
THAT ATE the florist's stock.
AND SHE hadn't any idea.
WHAT IT was all about.
AND I didn't blame her.
AND SHE wanted to know.
HOW I ever had time.
WITH SO many hotels.
TO WRITE such things.
AND I told her I did it.
TO EARN extra money.
AND SHE looked at me strangely.
AND FINISHED her work.
AND WENT out of the room.
AND ON the next morning.
SHE SORT of sneaked in.
AND MADE up the room.
AND JUST spoke to me once.
AND CALLED me Mr. Linnard.
AND THEN hurried out.
AND THE way she looks at me.
I FEEL quite sure.
THAT SHE has an idea.
THAT MR. Linnard.
IS LOSING his mind.
AND THAT she's afraid.
TO SAY anything about it.
FOR FEAR she'll be canned.

I THANK you.

IS YOUR TICKET READY?

This evening brings the final performance of John F. Malley and company in their annual financial drama, entitled: "PAY YOUR INCOME TAX." The engagement has been heavily patronized, the box office receipts break all records, and the production is a tremendous success. For the past week there has been standing room only and not much of that. Those who have not seen Mr. Malley and his competent company in this great educational and patriotic drama are earnestly cautioned not to forget that the engagement closes tonight, and there will be no rain checks issued.

LEAGUE OF CIRCUSES

The two "Greatest Shows on Earth" have combined; which ought to settle the question.

SYLLABIFICATION OF ACOAXET

How to pronounce "Acoaxet," the village which seeks separation from Westport and to become a town by itself. James F. Jackson, the Brookline and Boston attorney, who has been a Summer resident there for thirty years, was asked. He said: "A-coax-et," with the accent on the "coax." This will be news to any who have assumed that the Indian name had four syllables, with accent on the penult, thus: "A-co-AX-et." Malefactors of puns might say that the Acoaxeters do not "coax" separation, but "ax" it; also that they are putting the "ax" in Acoaxet to sever it from the parent town.

MILD WINTER REQUEST

Thomas Winter escaped from Sing Sing, dodged the police eight months and when caught tried to have his period of absence count as time served on his eight-year term. But the New York Parole Board ruled him A. W. O. L.

ROCKING THE PARENTAL BOAT

Quincy Women's Club votes that woman has an inalienable right to dress as she pleases. But when the high school "flappers" put the same argument up to their mothers, that is "something else again," as Abe and Mawruss said it. Did you ever hear Miss Sixteen-Year-Old standing up for her own ideas on how to "do" her own hair, for example?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Defends Teachers

Editor Boston American:

Although not a school teacher, I am impelled to say a few words in defence of the school teacher and in reply to the letter in the American written by "A Girl Who Sells Tickets."

To become a school teacher, a girl must spend from three to six years acquiring an education, which the ticket seller does not require and seldom has. The loss of wages and necessary expense during this period corresponds to an investment of several thousand dollars. When the girl has completed her strenuous course of studies, she usually finds it necessary to go away from home and take a position in some small country school for one or more years. Here she may receive a salary that amounts to about $12 or $15 a week for the working weeks, leaving her long vacation without pay. On the basis of fifty-two weeks a year, she gets about $10 or $12 a week. If she desires to stay at home, she may be fortunate enough to get a position as "cadet" teacher at less than half this amount, until she has had a year or two of experience.

While teaching, she is forced to constantly keep posted on all matters, which takes time and money.

While her school rooms seem to close at an early hour, she has much to do in the way of correcting lessons, etc., and on either Saturday or Sunday she has more or less work to do in planning for the following week's work. No one will deny that handling a room full of children is a nerve-racking performance, and that the teacher is at all times expected to show a calm demeanor and display the greatest diplomacy and courtesy in the face of all kinds of troubles and complaints.

I regret to say that my personal experience teaches me that the ticket seller seldom shows the interest in her business or extends the courtesy to the patrons of the road that the school teacher shows. Why should the ticket seller be entitled to so much greater pay than the school teacher, in view of the many qualifications required of the teacher and the large amount of time and money she has invested in preparing to do what we all concede to be one of the most important works in the world—training the coming workers of the world?

FAIR PLAY.

Begin Haggard's Masterpiece Tomorrow

In "MOON OF ISRAEL," the first installment of which will appear tomorrow in the Sunday Advertiser and American, the great novelist, SIR H. RIDER HAGGARD, turns back old Time and lets us live thousands of years ago, along with the fascinating characters of this masterpiece—CHAMBERS' "THE DARK STAR," also begins tomorrow, and is another literary event—GEORGE BERNARD SHAW, in a brilliant and exclusive article, pleads for Christian charity toward our vanquished foe—GERMAN MINISTER OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS raises violent protest against Allied "judges"—HOW KITCHENER DIED, told for the first time officially by ADMIRAL JELLICOE—DANIEL F. COHALAN in stirring arraignment says "ENGLAND IS AFRAID TO FREE IRELAND"—And many other notable features, tomorrow.

You remember the magic carpet of Bagdad. One steps upon it, thinks of some place he wishes to go, and though it were on the other side of the Earth—in another world, perhaps—he would straightway be there. So goes the tale—for there is magic in it. Of such is RIDER HAGGARD'S art. In "MOON OF ISRAEL," his masterly new serial beginning tomorrow in the Magazine Section, he transports us in one stroke of the pen, back into the days of the Israelitish captivity in Egypt, and we share the love and fortunes, the adventures and mishaps, the loves and disappointments, of Ana, Scribe and King's Companion, of Seti, lonely and noble Prince Royal of Egypt, and of Merapi, "Moon of Israel" and their friends and enemies. We do not merely read the tale—we live it with those long gone before; we breathe its mystery, we laugh, we cry, we thrill, we are swept on the same emotional tide as those who live in Haggard's pages. From the first word the onward march of the story is steady and sure; and it is told with a poetic beauty of phraseology. Beautiful also are the illustrations by Edmund Frederick. Generous installments will appear each Sunday; you will not want to miss a single one. Begin reading to TOMORROW!

ANOTHER fiction event—ROBERT W. CHAMBERS' new and thrilling romance of an American girl, "THE DARK STAR," will be found daily and Sunday, in the Boston American and the Sunday Advertiser and American; and this story also BEGINS TOMORROW!

Tomorrow's, therefore, might almost be termed—as the magazines put it, "a fiction number." But the NEWS will all be there, never doubt, and there is a notable array of big FEATURES. Foremost among these may be mentioned another exclusive article by GEORGE BERNARD SHAW, in which the famous publicist and writer makes the startling statement that 763,000 have DIED OF HUNGER IN GERMANY. He quotes Ruskin's statement—"The only wealth is life," and pointing to the grand total of lives war and its attendent evils have cost Germany, he cries: "Is not this 'revenge' enough?" And he makes a powerful plea for Christian charity toward the vanquished foe.

Of almost equal interest is the timely article by COUNT BROCKDORFF-RANTZAU, German Minister of Foreign Affairs, who raises a vigorous protest against the delay in the final peace settlement, and the proposed disposition of German territorial possessions by the Allies. He attacks the Allied Commission as "Germany's judges," and exclaims: "Violence may be done to us, but we cannot be forced to acknowledge that violence is right!"

HOW K. of K. DIED is told for the first time by LORD JELLICOE, the ex-First Sea Lord of the British Admiralty. The whole world felt the thrill of shock when it was announced that Lord Kitchener, builder of Britain's emergency army, the hope of the Empire, had been lost at sea. Even yet one sometimes hears the rumor—"He was not lost, but captured." And always we wondered if the Germans through spies knew when the ship with its precious human freight would sail, and sent submarines to attack it. In this OFFICIAL statement of the whole affair—the first made—JELLICOE says not; that the ship struck a mine; and he describes the whole event, and how Kitchener of Khartoum met the end.

DANIEL F. COHALAN, Supreme Court Justice of New York, and chairman of the Irish Race Convention, contributes a valuable article on the all-absorbing IRISH question—"ENGLAND IS AFRAID TO FREE IRELAND," he declares, "because Ireland would soon rival Britain in the world market."

How the "FIGHTING PRIEST," Michael J. O'Connor of the 26th, ROUTED THE ENEMY BY SOUP, is an interesting feature of the final installment of the thrilling story of the hero chaplain, tomorrow!

The British Secret Service officer, ALLAN DODSWORTH, whose sensational story of the German master spy (Lody's) confession the day before he was shot in the London Tower, thrilled thousands of readers last Sunday, contributes a second chapter from his experiences tomorrow—how GUSTAV KRONER was lured to his doom by an intrigue with a young woman who proved to be a British agent on his trail.

T. P. O'CONNOR, in another of his brilliant weekly political reviews, hints at the beginning of a reaction in England AGAINST LLOYD GEORGE.

You'll find "a little o' this and a little o' that," but ALL GOOD FUN on our brilliant and original two pages—the "Latest and Best in the World of Wit," and "As the Funmakers See the News."

Also, there's Father, as usual—large as life and twice as natural. No, on second thought, not natural at all—he hasn't so much as a black eye. It takes brains—real WIT, to get ahead of Mrs. Jiggs, and Father bats another perfect score tomorrow. "Boob" does a good turn for a blind man—and the blind one helps himself to a sight-seeing trip around the world. You'd never guess what happens to "Boob," though! Rest of the Comic family as funny as usual—these are more so, that's all.
